- A. Active monitoring
- B. Correlating
- C. Archiving
- D. sandboxing

Answer: A

Explanation:

NEW QUESTION # 89

Which not-for-profit organization maintains the common vulnerability exposure catalog that is available through their public website?

- A. MITRE
- B. Office of Cyber Security and Information Assurance
- C. Cybersecurity Vulnerability Research Center
- D. Department of Homeland Security

Answer: A

Explanation:

MITRE is a not-for-profit organization that operates research and development centers sponsored by the federal government. MITRE maintains the Common Vulnerabilities and Exposures (CVE) catalog, which is a dictionary of common names for publicly known cybersecurity vulnerabilities. CVE's common identifiers, called CVE Identifiers, make it easier to share data across separate network security databases and tools, and provide a baseline for evaluating the coverage of an organization's security tools.

NEW QUESTION # 90

What is the key to "taking down" a botnet?

- A. install openvas software on endpoints
- B. use LDAP as a directory service
- C. block Docker engine software on endpoints
- D. prevent bots from communicating with the C2

Answer: D

Explanation:

A botnet is a network of computers or devices that are infected by malware and controlled by a malicious actor, known as the botmaster or bot-herder. The botmaster uses a command and control (C2) server or channel to send instructions to the bots and receive information from them. The C2 communication is essential for the botmaster to maintain control over the botnet and use it for various malicious purposes, such as launching distributed denial-of-service (DDoS) attacks, stealing data, sending spam, or mining cryptocurrency. Therefore, the key to "taking down" a botnet is to prevent the bots from communicating with the C2 server or channel. This can be done by disrupting, blocking, or hijacking the C2 communication, which can render the botnet ineffective, unstable, or inaccessible. For example, security researchers or law enforcement agencies can use techniques such as sinkholing, domain name system (DNS) poisoning, or domain seizure to redirect the bot traffic to a benign server or a dead end, cutting off the connection between the bots and the botmaster. Alternatively, they can use techniques such as reverse engineering, decryption, or impersonation to infiltrate the C2 server or channel and take over the botnet, either to disable it, monitor it, or use it for good purposes. ### NEW QUESTION # 91

Which two statements are true about servers in a demilitarized zone (DMZ)? (Choose two.)

- A. They are isolated from the internal network.
- B. They can be accessed by traffic from the internet.
- C. They are located in the internal network.
- D. They can expose servers in the internal network to attacks.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

A demilitarized zone (DMZ) is a portion of an enterprise network that sits behind a firewall but outside of or segmented from the internal network<sup>1</sup>. The DMZ typically hosts public services, such as web, mail, and domain servers, that can be accessed by traffic from the internet<sup>1</sup>. However, the DMZ is isolated from the internal network by another firewall or security gateway, which prevents unauthorized access to the private network<sup>2</sup>. Therefore, statements A and D are true about servers in a DMZ, while statements B and C are false. References:

NEW QUESTION # 92

Which two statements apply to SaaS financial botnets? (Choose two.)

- A. They are sold as kits that allow attackers to license the code.
- B. They are used by attackers to build their own botnets.
- C. They are larger than spamming or DDoS botnets.
- D. They are a defense against spam attacks.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

SaaS financial botnets are often sold as kits, enabling attackers to license and reuse the malicious code easily.

These kits allow attackers to build and operate their own botnets, often targeting financial data or systems.

Financial botnets are typically smaller but more targeted than spamming or DDoS botnets. Botnets are not a defense mechanism, but rather a threat.
