IT Specialist HTML5 Application Development Sample Questions (Q54-Q59):

NEW QUESTION # 54

You are creating a dietary request form for an upcoming conference. The form must include the following elements:

- * The title " Conference Registration Form "
- * A Name input field for the attendee ' s name
- * A list of food options the attendee can select by using the mouse or typing Complete the code by moving the appropriate code segments from the list on the left to the correct locations on the right. You may use each code segment once, more than once, or not at all.

Note: You will receive partial credit for each correct response.

The screenshot shows a drag-and-drop interface for an HTML5 form. On the left, under 'Code Segments', there are several code snippets. On the right, under 'Answer Area', there is a partially completed HTML form. A green triangle points to the first code segment in the 'Code Segments' area.

Answer:

Explanation:

The screenshot shows the same drag-and-drop interface as above, but with the code segments moved to their correct positions in the answer area. A green triangle points to the first code segment in the 'Code Segments' area.

Explanation:

<!DOCTYPE html >
<html >
<body >
<h1 > The Fitness World Around Us - Spring Conference </h1 >
<form action= " process.php " method= " post " >
<legend > Conference Registration Form </legend >
<label for= " name " > Name: </label >
<input type= " text " id= " name " size= " 30 " maxlength= " 30 " value= " "/>
<input id= " food " placeholder= " Cuisine " list= " food-choice " size= " 40 "/>
<datalist id= " food-choice " >
<option value= " Vegetarian " > Vegetarian </option >
<option value= " Traditional " > Traditional </option >
<option value= " Surprise Me " selected > Surprise Me </option >
</datalist >
<input type= " submit " >
</form >

</body >
</html >

The correct solution must satisfy all three stated form requirements. The title "Conference Registration Form" is supplied by the `< legend >` element in the first valid code segment. That same segment also includes the required attendee name field by using a `< label >` associated with an `< input type= " text " >`. The `for= " name "` and `id= " name "` relationship makes the label programmatically connected to the input, which is the correct HTML form-accessibility pattern. For the food options, the correct choice is the segment that uses an `< input >` element with a `list` attribute connected to a `< datalist >` element. This is required because the attendee must be able to select an option by using the mouse or type a value manually. A `< select >` element provides a fixed dropdown list, and radio buttons provide fixed clickable choices, but neither is the best match for a type-ahead list requirement. The `< datalist >` element supplies predefined options such as Vegetarian, Traditional, and Surprise Me while still allowing keyboard entry through the associated input field. References/topics: HTML5 forms, labels, text inputs, datalist, form usability, selectable and typed input options.

NEW QUESTION # 55

Which element should you use to rotate an SVG square?

- A. `animateTransform`
- B. `circle`
- C. `path`
- D. `animateMotion`

Answer: A

Explanation:

The correct element is `animateTransform`. In SVG, rotation is not produced by drawing a different shape; it is produced by applying a transformation to an existing graphical element, such as a `< rect >` representing a square. The `< animateTransform >` element is specifically designed to animate the `transform` attribute of a target SVG element, and its supported transformation types include translation, scaling, rotation, and skewing.

Therefore, to rotate a square, the square would normally be defined with a shape element such as `< rect >`, and an `< animateTransform >` child or associated animation would specify `attributeName= " transform "` and `type= " rotate "`. `animateMotion` is incorrect because it moves an element along a motion path rather than rotating the element itself. `circle` is a shape element, not an animation mechanism. `path` defines arbitrary vector geometry, but it does not by itself animate or rotate another object.

References/topics: SVG graphics, SVG transformations, animation elements, transform attribute, rotation animation.

NEW QUESTION # 56

You are creating the styling for your webpage. Which two CSS attributes produce a scroll bar if your content overflows its element? Choose 2.

- A. `scroll`
- B. `visible`
- C. `auto`
- D. `hidden`

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

The correct values are `scroll` and `auto`. The CSS `overflow` property controls what happens when content is too large to fit inside an element's box. MDN describes `overflow` as setting the desired behavior when content does not fit inside the element's padding box. The value `overflow: scroll` creates a scroll container and displays scrollbars so overflowing content can be reached, even when the scrollbar may not be strictly needed in some rendering environments. The value `overflow: auto` also creates scrolling behavior when content overflows, but it is conditional: scrollbars appear only when the content exceeds the available box size. `hidden` is incorrect because it clips overflowing content and hides the excess rather than exposing it through a scrollbar. `visible` is also incorrect because it allows overflow to render outside the element box and does not create a scroll container. Therefore, when the question asks which settings produce a scrollbar if content overflows, the precise answers are `scroll` and `auto`. References/topics: CSS overflow, scroll containers, overflow clipping, automatic scrollbars, layout flow.

NEW QUESTION # 57

Move the appropriate attributes from the list on the left to the correct descriptions on the right. You may use each attribute once, more than once, or not at all.

Note: You will receive partial credit for each correct match.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

pattern # Provides a way to set a regular expression that the value must match placeholder # Provides a way to set default text that displays until focus is placed in an element required # Provides a way to set form elements as mandatory multiple # Provides a way to allow more than one file or email address in a single input
 The correct matches are based on standard HTML5 form validation and input-attribute behavior. The pattern attribute defines a regular expression that the input value must satisfy before the form can be submitted successfully. It is commonly used for structured values such as phone numbers, codes, postal formats, or custom identifiers. The placeholder attribute supplies short hint text inside an input field, helping the user understand the expected value before entering data. The required attribute makes a form control mandatory; if the field is empty, constraint validation prevents successful submission. The multiple attribute allows a single input to accept more than one value, specifically for controls such as input type= " file " and input type= " email " , where users may upload multiple files or enter multiple email addresses. The maxlength attribute is not used in these matches because it limits the maximum number of characters that can be entered, but none of the listed descriptions asks for character-length restriction. References/topics: HTML5 form attributes, constraint validation, pattern, placeholder, required, multiple, input validation.

NEW QUESTION # 58

You create an interface for a touch-enabled application. Some input buttons do not trigger when tapped. What are two possible causes?

- A. The defined input areas are not large enough.
- B. The input areas are using event handlers to detect input.
- C. The touch screen is not initialized.
- D. The input areas overlap with other input areas.

Answer: A,D
