Veeam Certified Engineer v12 Sample Questions (Q153-Q158):

NEW QUESTION # 153

An engineer needs to be able to perform all functions without needing to access the backup server locally or over remote desktop. What should the engineer do?

- A. Use Enterprise Manaqerto connect to the Veeam Backup & Replication server.
- B. Install the Veeam console on the engineer's desktop.
- C. Use SSH to connect to the Veeam Backup & Replication server.
- D. Install the required Veeam Explorers locally

Answer: B

Explanation:
To perform all functions without needing to access the backup server locally or over remote desktop, the engineer can install the Veeam console on their desktop. This allows the engineer to remotely manage and control the Veeam Backup & Replication infrastructure. The console provides full access to the backup server's capabilities from any machine within the network, making it unnecessary to log in directly to the server.References:

NEW QUESTION # 154

Which Veeam component allows for replication of virtual machines to a service provider without the use of VPNs?

- A. Veeam Backup Enterprise Manager
- B. Veeam Cloud Connect
- C. Veeam Direct Connect
- D. Veeam Direct Replication

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 155

An engineer wants to make sure that a single SQL Database can be recovered in a consistent manner with an RPO that will offer the least impact on the production environment during production hours. Granular restores should be performed with the Veeam console as the company does not have a DBA and is not using SQL Management Studio (SSMS).
The engineer took the following steps:
- Created a separate job for the MS SQL VMs
- At guest processing, enabled application-aware processing and provide the credentials with sufficient permissions
- Schedule the job to run every 24 hours
Which other change can the engineer make for this job to achieve the proposed goals?

- A. Schedule the job to run every 30 minutes
- B. Schedule transaction log processing every 30 minutes
- C. Remove the VM and add only the SQL Databases in the job
- D. Set the backup job to perform recovery using Veeam Explorer for SQL

Answer: B

Explanation:
To achieve the goal of recovering a single SQL Database in a consistent manner with minimal impact on the production environment during production hours, while allowing for granular restores through the Veeam console, the engineer should A: Schedule transaction log processing every 30 minutes. By enabling application-aware processing for the SQL VM and scheduling the main backup job to run every 24 hours, the base image of the SQL database is protected.
However, to achieve a more granular Recovery Point Objective (RPO) and ensure the ability to restore to specific points in time, transaction log backups must be performed more frequently.
Configuring the backup job to process transaction logs every 30 minutes captures the SQL database changes more frequently without the overhead of a full backup, allowing for point-in- time restores directly from the Veeam console without the need for SQL Management Studio (SSMS) or a Database Administrator (DBA). This setup aligns with the goals of maintaining operational efficiency and minimizing the impact on production while ensuring robust data protection capabilities.

NEW QUESTION # 156

A customer wants to start an on-demand lab from backup files for several mission critical VMs.
What SureBackup feature should be configured to identify the necessary VMs?

- A. Virtual Lab
- B. Staged Restore
- C. Application Group
- D. Secure Restore

Answer: C

Explanation:
When starting an on-demand lab from backup files for mission-critical VMs, the appropriate SureBackup feature to configure is A: Application Group. An Application Group in Veeam Backup & Replication is a predefined group of VMs that are started together in the SureBackup job. This feature is designed to ensure that interdependent VMs, such as those comprising a multi-tier application, are started in a sequence that respects their operational dependencies, allowing for comprehensive verification and testing. The Application Group can include the mission-critical VMs and any associated VMs required for the application environment to function correctly, ensuring that all components are available and interact as expected within the isolated on-demand lab environment. This setup facilitates effective testing or troubleshooting in a manner that closely mirrors the production environment without impacting live operations.

NEW QUESTION # 157

A customer has been using an NFS repository in a high-capacity NAS device but is concerned about performance and security and complains that full backups require too much capacity.
What should the system engineer recommend?

- A. Enable deduplication on the NAS side, keep the same backup configuration so full backups will be completely deduplicated and take negligible capacity.
- B. Run the Security & Compliance Analyzer to get the best recommendation specific for the customer environment and use case.
- C. Reduce the block size in the advanced job settings to improve data deduplication.
- D. Deploy a hardened repository in a new server and use XFS with Fast Clone for synthetic full backups.

Answer: D
