Which two types of data should the developer consider importing?

Choose 2 answers

- A. Customers
- B. Metadata
- C. Sites configurations
- D. Services
- E. Catalog

Answer: B,C

NEW QUESTION # 26

A company manages its regional operations as separate businesses. The regional sites (Site A and Site B) operate with:

- * Separate realms
- * Different code bases
- * Different category navigation menus
- * Frequent updates on category structure

The requirement from the business is to provide hreflang link tags on category pages pointing to the same category on the other regional site. Example HTML for one of these links as displayed on Site A is:

Which solution should the Architect choose while keeping performance in mind?

- A. Create a new custom attribute on the Category. Populate the attribute with the other entire site URLs corresponding to locales in JSON Format. Use the attribute to display the hreflang link tag.
- B. Create a new custom object type. Populate the hreflang mapping for each category and locale in this custom object. Use the custom object to display the hreflang link tag.
- C. Create a custom Business Manager module. Ask the business to maintain the hreflang link tags for each regional site in this Business Manager module.
- D. Create additional locales in all realms. Create a new custom attribute on the category that is localized. Populate the attribute with the other site URLs and use it to display the hreflang tag.

Answer: B

Explanation:

For a multi-regional setup with different realms and frequent updates, using a custom object to manage hreflang mappings offers flexibility and scalability. Custom objects can efficiently store URL mappings for each category across different locales, making it easier to manage and update as category structures change.

This method allows for centralized control over hreflang mappings and simplifies maintenance compared to other options which might involve more complex integrations or manual updates.

NEW QUESTION # 27

The Client wants to offer custom made container products on its new B2C Commerce storefront. The Client provided two business requirements.

- * Customer can specify container length, width, and height.
- * Customer can specify the material that the container is made of.

The Client also provided the Architect a current data schema (shown below) for reference while preparing the technical documentation.

Which two gaps between the requirements and the data schema should the Architect discuss with the Client?

Choose 2 answers

- A. The data schema includes a Color_ID field, but there isn't a business requirement to allow the customer to specify container color.
- B. The data schema includes unique identifiers for material and color fields, but neither are reflected in the business requirements.

- C. The data schema includes a material Price_Markup field, but there isn't a business requirement to factor the material cost into the final price calculation.
- D. The data schema includes an implied structure that the customer's choices should be captured as custom objects, but there isn't a business requirement to do so

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

The provided data schema includes several fields that do not match the stated business requirements, which focus on the custom dimensions and materials of the containers:

Option A: The inclusion of unique identifiers for materials and color fields in the data schema suggests a level of detail and structure around these attributes that is not reflected in the business requirements. If the business does not require tracking or differentiating materials beyond just naming them, this might be unnecessarily complex.

Option D: The data schema includes a Color_ID field, which implies the ability to specify the color of the container. However, the business requirements do not mention color as a customization option available to customers. This discrepancy needs to be addressed to ensure that the database design aligns with actual business needs.

NEW QUESTION # 28

An Architect is performing an audit of production logs via Log Center and finds some potentially dangerous custom log output.

In which two ways is this log output improper in a production environment? Choose 2 answers

- A. Information logs should not be used in a production environment
- B. The log information includes the customer's cardname as it appears along with the credit card number (PAN), which violates PCI.
- C. The log information includes the order number and customer's email, which violates PCI.
- D. The log information includes the customer's card CW (card security code) and expiration date, which violates PCI.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

In a production environment, logging sensitive customer information such as credit card details (PAN, CVV, expiration date) can lead to severe security and compliance issues, specifically violating PCI DSS (Payment Card Industry Data Security Standard) requirements. The standards strictly prohibit the storage of CVV codes and mandate that any PAN displayed must be masked. Storing such data in logs is not only a risk for data breaches but also non-compliance with these standards can lead to penalties.

Option A: Including the customer's card name along with the full credit card number in logs is a clear violation of PCI DSS requirements, which stipulate that no more than the last four digits of the card number may be displayed.

Option B: Logging the card security code (CVV) and expiration date is explicitly prohibited by PCI DSS, which requires that sensitive authentication data, including CVV, must never be stored post-authentication, even if it is encrypted.
