VMware Cloud Foundation 5.2 Administrator Sample Questions (Q80-Q85):

NEW QUESTION # 80
An administrator needs to configure an ESXi host and create a host profile to ensure consistent configuration across multiple hosts in a cluster.
Which three steps are necessary to achieve this? (Choose three.)

- A. Remediate the non-compliant hosts to ensure they match the host profile.
- B. Manually configure each host to match the reference host settings.
- C. Extract the host profile from the configured reference host.
- D. Configure the desired settings on a reference ESXi host.
- E. Apply the host profile to all hosts in the cluster.

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:
First, configure the desired settings on a reference ESXi host. This host will be used as the template for creating a consistent configuration across the cluster.

After configuring the reference host, extract the host profile from it. This captures the configuration of the reference host as a host profile.
Remediation is necessary to ensure that other hosts in the cluster align with the reference host's configuration. The host profile can be applied, and remediation will correct any non-compliant settings on other hosts.

NEW QUESTION # 81
Which of the following are use cases for VMware NSX in a Cloud Foundation deployment? (Select all that apply)

- A. Cloud monitoring
- B. Automated backups
- C. Micro-segmentation
- D. Data encryption
- E. Load balancing

Answer: C,E

Explanation:
Load balancing: NSX provides load balancing capabilities that distribute traffic among multiple servers or services, improving application availability and performance.
Micro-segmentation: This is one of the primary use cases for NSX. It allows for granular security policies to be applied to individual workloads within the data center, helping to protect against lateral movement of threats.
Automated backups: While backups are essential for data protection, they are typically handled by backup solutions and are not a direct use case for NSX.
Data encryption: While NSX may support some aspects of network security, data encryption is generally handled at the storage or application level, rather than being a direct function of NSX.
Cloud monitoring: NSX does not specifically focus on monitoring; instead, it is primarily concerned with network virtualization and security.

NEW QUESTION # 82
What is a key feature of NSX Edge Clusters that enhances security in VMware Cloud Foundation?

- A. Data Encryption
- B. Backup Solutions
- C. Distributed Firewall
- D. Load Balancing

Answer: C

Explanation:
Load balancing is not a security feature but enhances performance.
Data encryption is handled separately from Edge Clusters.
Backup solutions do not relate to the security features of Edge Clusters.
They provide distributed firewall capabilities to protect workloads.

NEW QUESTION # 83
How can vSphere's High Availability (HA) feature assist in troubleshooting?

- A. Log Analysis
- B. Resource Allocation
- C. Automatic VM Restart
- D. Manual Intervention

Answer: C

Explanation:
Resource allocation is managed separately from HA configurations.
HA automatically restarts VMs on available hosts if a host fails.

Log analysis is useful but not directly tied to HA functionality.
Manual intervention is not needed when HA is configured properly.

NEW QUESTION # 84
In a case study, a company is experiencing issues with secure connections between their management components. What should they check first?

- A. User Permissions
- B. Certificate Validity
- C. Network Configuration
- D. Storage Capacity

Answer: B

Explanation:
User permissions are not the first concern in this scenario.
Network settings may need review but are secondary to certificate checks.
Storage capacity is unrelated to certificate validity.
They should verify that all certificates are valid and not expired.
