NEW QUESTION # 41
An engineer notices that while an employee is connected remotely, all traffic is being routed to the corporate network. Which split-tunnel policy allows a remote client to use their local provider for Internet access when working from home?

- A. tunnelspecified
- B. tunnelall
- C. excludeall
- D. excludespecified

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 42

An engineer is creating an URL object on Cisco FMC. How must it be configured so that the object will match for HTTPS traffic in an access control policy?

- A. Use the FQDN including the subdomain for the website.
- B. Specify the protocol to match (HTTP or HTTPS).
- C. Define the path to the individual webpage that uses HTTPS.
- D. Use the subject common name from the website certificate.

Answer: A

Explanation:
Use the FQDN including the subdomain for the website. According to the Firepower Management Center Configuration Guide, Version 6.61, when you create a URL object, you must use the fully qualified domain name (FQDN) of the website, including any subdomains, and omit the protocol prefix (HTTP or HTTPS). For example, to match www.example.com, you must enter www.example.com as the URL object value, not http://www.example.com or https://www.example.com. The system automatically matches both HTTP and HTTPS traffic for the same FQDN. Specifying the protocol to match (HTTP or HTTPS) is not required and will result in an invalid URL object. Using the subject common name from the website certificate or defining the path to the individual webpage that uses HTTPS are not supported options for URL objects.
