- A. Spaces
- B. Pipes
- C. Tabs
- D. Commas

Answer: A,B,D

Explanation:
Reference: https://docs.splunk.com/Documentation/Splunk/8.0.3/Knowledge/FXSelectMethodstep The Field Extractor (FX) is a tool that helps you extract fields from your data using delimiters or regular expressions. Delimiters are characters or strings that separate fields in your data. The FX can detect some common delimiters automatically, such as pipes (|), spaces ( ), commas (,), semicolons (;), etc. The FX cannot detect tabs (\t) as delimiters automatically, but you can specify them manually in the FX interface.

- A. A tab or space.
- B. A period or comma.
- C. Any consistent character.
- D. A comma.

Answer: C

Explanation:
When using the Field Extractor (FX) in Splunk to perform field extraction, any consistent character can be used as a delimiter. The Field Extractor allows users to define how fields are separated in the raw event data, and as long as the delimiter is consistent, the FX tool can parse and extract the fields correctly.
