Arnold, a forensic investigator, was tasked with analyzing a corporate network that was suspected of having unauthorized access points. He was particularly concerned about the possibility of rogue access points that might have been introduced by an attacker. To gain full visibility into the network and its components, Arnold employed a forensic tool that allowed him to analyze network traffic, monitor various access points for anomalies, and detect suspicious behaviors indicative of rogue devices. Arnold examined the log data provided by the tool, which gave him insights into the network's activities and helped him confirm whether any unauthorized devices were operating on the network. Which tool did Arnold employ in the above scenario?

- A. Freta
- B. Security Onion
- C. Promqry
- D. Time Machine

Answer: B

Explanation:
According to theCHFI v11 Network Forensics, Incident Detection, and SIEM objectives,Security Onion is a widely used open-source platform designed specifically fornetwork security monitoring, intrusion detection, and forensic analysis. It integrates multiple tools such asSnort/Suricata (IDS/IPS),Zeek (Bro)for network traffic analysis,Elastic Stack, andSIEM capabilities, providing deep visibility into network activities.
In the given scenario, Arnold required a solution capable ofanalyzing live and stored network traffic, monitoring access points,detecting anomalies, andidentifying rogue or unauthorized devices. Security Onion fulfills all these requirements by collecting and correlating logs, monitoring network behavior, and generating alerts for suspicious patterns such as unknown MAC addresses, abnormal traffic flows, and unauthorized access point activity.
The other options do not align with the scenario.Time Machineis a macOS backup utility, not a network forensic tool.Promqryis used for querying Prometheus metrics and is not designed for forensic traffic analysis.Fretais a cloud-based memory forensics tool focused on Linux runtime analysis, not network-wide access point monitoring.
CHFI v11 emphasizes the use ofSIEM and network monitoring platformslike Security Onion for detecting rogue devices, investigating unauthorized access, and performing evidence correlation using network logs and alerts. Therefore, the correct and CHFI-verified answer isSecurity Onion (Option D).
