NEW QUESTION # 228
A customer reports their tablet was recently dropped on the ground. The tablet has a small crack in one corner of the display, and it does not charge when plugged in.
Which of the following should a technician do first?

- A. Perform a hard restart.
- B. Replace the battery
- C. Inspect the USB-C port for damage
- D. Run diagnostics on the digitizer

Answer: C

Explanation:
Physical damage from dropping a tablet may often affect ports or connectors. Before taking deeper diagnostic or replacement steps, it's important to visually inspect the USB-C charging port for damage or debris. If the port is damaged, charging issues can occur regardless of battery health.

NEW QUESTION # 229
A user experiences a random BSOD while using a computer, but the operating system recovers as expected Which of the following symptoms would indicate the issue is related to RAM?

- A. POST code beeps
- B. Distended capacitors
- C. Continuous reboots
- D. Wrong BIOS configurations

Answer: A

Explanation:
During the Power-On Self-Test (POST), the BIOS performs checks on system hardware, including RAM. If the RAM is faulty, POST may produce a series of beep codes indicating memory issues.
These beep codes are often the first sign of RAM-related problems, especially if the BSOD occurs randomly.
Incorrect Options:
A . Wrong BIOS configurations: Incorrect BIOS settings may cause boot errors, but they are less likely to cause random BSODs.
B . Continuous reboots: Continuous reboots could result from multiple hardware or software issues but do not specifically point to RAM.
C . Distended capacitors: Faulty capacitors typically affect the motherboard, not the RAM.
Key Takeaway: POST beep codes are a common diagnostic tool for identifying RAM-related issues.

NEW QUESTION # 230
A user is trying to print diagrams on 11in × 17in (28cm × 43cm) paper. The correct paper is in the printer, but the printer prompts the user to insert paper. A technician assisting the user successfully prints the diagram to a different printer that is the same model.
Which of the following is the most likely cause of this issue on the user's printer?

- A. Connectivity issues
- B. Incorrect driver
- C. Insufficient permissions
- D. Tray settings

Answer: D

Explanation:
The most likely cause of this issue is incorrect tray settings on the user's printer. According to CompTIA Core 1 (220-1201) printer configuration and troubleshooting concepts, printers rely on tray configuration settings to determine the paper size and paper type loaded in each tray. If the tray is not configured for 11 ×
17 (Tabloid/Ledger) paper, the printer will assume the required paper is unavailable-even if the paper is physically present.
When a print job specifies a paper size that does not match the tray's configured settings, the printer commonly displays a message prompting the user to insert the correct paper. The fact that the same document prints successfully on another printer of the same model confirms that the driver, permissions, and connectivity are functioning correctly, further isolating the issue to the local printer's tray configuration.
An incorrect driver would cause consistent problems across printers, not just one. Connectivity issues would prevent communication with the printer entirely, and insufficient permissions would generate access or authorization errors rather than a paper prompt.
CompTIA emphasizes verifying tray assignments and paper size configuration as a primary troubleshooting step when printers incorrectly request paper that is already loaded.

- D. Security for connections in close proximity

Answer: B
