AVIXA Certified Technology Specialist Sample Questions (Q248-Q253):

NEW QUESTION # 248

When planning to use audio equipment on a converged enterprise network, it may be desirable to separate broadcast domains in order to

- A. avoid crosstalk between multi track channel packets.
- B. avoid audio feedback between devices.
- C. comply with local electrical and telecommunication regulations.
- D. avoid delaying time sensitive AV traffic on the network.

Answer: D

Explanation:

When using audio equipment on a converged enterprise network, separating broadcast domains is essential to avoid delaying time-sensitive AV traffic. AV traffic, such as audio and video streams, requires low latency and minimal jitter to maintain quality. By segregating these streams from other types of network traffic, such as data and general communications, network performance can be optimized, ensuring that AV services operate smoothly without interruption.

NEW QUESTION # 249

While replacing a lamp in a client's LCD projector, it is important to:

- A. Calculate the new projector throw distance.
- B. Clean the air filter and reset the lamp timer.
- C. Test the projector using a commercially produced DVD movie.
- D. Measure the projector's light output with the new lamp in place.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Proper maintenance during lamp replacement includes cleaning the air filter (to maintain airflow and cooling efficiency) and resetting the lamp timer (to allow the projector to accurately track lamp life and provide warnings). Neglecting either may cause overheating or inaccurate lamp life reporting.

NEW QUESTION # 250

Which of the following is the BEST service when new firmware is available for installed equipment across a fleet of conference rooms?

- A. updating them all at once
- B. replacing the equipment
- C. a ringed update approach
- D. keeping current version

Answer: C

Explanation:

The ringed update approach is the best service when new firmware is available for installed equipment across a fleet of conference rooms. This approach involves updating the firmware in phases or "rings," starting with a small group of devices to ensure that the update is stable and does not introduce new issues. Once the initial ring is confirmed to be successful, the update is gradually rolled out to additional groups, reducing the risk of widespread problems. This method allows for controlled testing and monitoring, ensuring that any issues can be addressed before the update is applied to all devices.

NEW QUESTION # 251

A client has ordered a large LED video wall to be installed in an existing board room. What should be the integrator's MAIN operational concerns?

- A. brightness and contrast
- B. power and temperature
- C. aspect ratio and resolution
- D. cable management and length

Answer: B

Explanation:

The main operational concerns for an integrator installing a large LED video wall in an existing boardroom are power and temperature. Large LED video walls consume significant power and generate substantial heat.

Proper power supply and efficient cooling mechanisms are crucial to ensure the system runs smoothly without overheating or power failures. Referencing Axis Technology Specialist documentation, these factors are critical for maintaining performance and longevity of the equipment.

NEW QUESTION # 252

Assuming that the screen and projector are both Ethernet controllable devices, where does the control system for the AV solution need to exist?

- A. above the projector, plugged into the serial port on the projector
- B. in a dedicated rack in the room
- C. connected to the network
- D. in the rear projection room

Answer: C

Explanation:

The control system for the AV solution, assuming both the screen and projector are Ethernet controllable devices, needs to be connected to the network. This allows for centralized control, remote access, and management of the AV devices, ensuring seamless integration and operation. Axis documentation emphasizes the importance of network connectivity for managing Ethernet-enabled AV equipment effectively.
