ISQI ISTQB Foundation Level - Acceptance Testing Sample Questions (Q40-Q45):

NEW QUESTION # 40

Which one of the following statements describes correctly how acceptance testing may be augmented with other test techniques or approaches?

- A. In a risk-based testing approach, acceptance criteria are derived from the tester's experience and intuition.
- B. In a priority-based testing approach, prioritization of acceptance tests depends on identified product risks.
- C. In a black-box testing approach, acceptance test scenarios follow the implemented sequence of function calls in the code.
- D. In a model-based testing approach, acceptance tests are generated from graphical or textual models.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 41

Which of the following statements regarding defects is MOST correct?

- A. If the defect turns out to be a bug, the tester writes a defect report and sends it to the business analyst for further investigation.
- B. Testers should provide accurate information regarding the difference between the expected test result and the actual result.
- C. The tester should analyze the potential impact of a defect on system usage, before communicating it to the business analyst.
- D. Regular meetings between business analysts and testers are necessary to report discrepancies between actual and expected outcome.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Defect reporting is a core responsibility of testers. When a test fails, the tester must document the observed behavior and how it differs from the expected behavior. This allows developers, analysts, and stakeholders to assess whether the issue is a defect, and if so, prioritize and fix it.

Option B is correct because it accurately describes the core responsibility of a tester when logging a defect: report the mismatch between actual and expected outcomes clearly and objectively.

Other options:

A refers to meetings, which are useful but not a replacement for clear defect reports.

C incorrectly assigns the role of defect routing to business analysts - this is typically handled by test or defect management tools.

D suggests the tester analyzes impact before reporting - which could delay the defect being logged and is not always the tester's role (impact analysis is often done collaboratively later).

B). Testers should provide accurate information regarding the difference between the expected test result and the actual result.

NEW QUESTION # 42

Which one of the following statements regarding ATDD / BDD is true?

- A. In both Acceptance-Test Driven Development (ATDD) and Behavior-Driven Development (BDD), test cases provide examples of product use.
- B. In Acceptance-Test Driven Development (ATDD), test cases are written prior to the acceptance criteria.
- C. Behavior-Driven Development (BDD) considers acceptance test design as an activity to be handled by the test team after requirements have been finalized.
- D. In both Acceptance-Test Driven Development (ATDD) and Behavior-Driven Development (BDD), acceptance test cases are written by a test automation engineer as test automation code.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 43

Which one of the following statements describes the relation between business goals, business needs and requirements BEST?

- A. Business goals, business needs and requirements describe at different levels of abstraction, what shall be achieved.
- B. Business needs address the business solution whereas business requirements define the business problem or opportunity.
- C. To derive the business needs, the business analyst first has to understand the business goals and requirements.
- D. Business goals and business needs are synonyms.

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to ISTQB and the Business Analysis Body of Knowledge (BABOK) standards, the terms business goals, business needs, and requirements are related but represent different levels of abstraction in defining what an organization aims to achieve.

* Business Goals represent the high-level strategic objectives an organization wants to accomplish.

These are broad statements of intent and typically reflect long-term ambitions.

* Business Needs specify what the business must address to meet its goals; these are more focused descriptions of the problems or opportunities that justify the business change. They provide a rationale for why a project or initiative is undertaken.

* Requirements are detailed specifications that describe the features, functions, or qualities the solution must have to fulfill the business needs.

The relationship is hierarchical and increasingly specific: business goals set the overarching purpose, business needs interpret these goals into actionable problem statements or opportunities, and requirements specify the solution details.

ISTQB glossary and syllabus excerpts confirm this layered approach, clarifying that these terms are not synonymous but instead describe the same concept at varying levels of detail and abstraction. Therefore, option B best captures this nuanced relationship.

Exact Extract from ISTQB Foundation Level Syllabus (Business Analysis Section):

"Business goals, business needs, and requirements describe, at different levels of abstraction, what shall be achieved by the business change. Business goals are high-level statements; business needs are statements of problems or opportunities to be addressed, and requirements define the detailed attributes of the solution to meet those needs."

NEW QUESTION # 44

Which of the following statements corresponds BEST to a UX requirement analysis activity?

- A. Environmental conditions such as light conditions are obtained from a task analysis.
- B. Personas are used to analyze products or solutions from competitors.
- C. User profiles are used to determine different levels of business knowledge.
- D. Security requirements are derived from usage scenarios.

Answer: C
