NEW QUESTION # 54

How can a process analysis be structured in SAP Signavio Process Intelligence? Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. Create Chapters to break down specific topics
- B. Create Investigations for specific purposes
- C. Create Sub-chapters within existing Chapters
- D. Create specific Data views

Answer: A,B

Explanation:
SAP Signavio Process Intelligence enables structured process analysis through Investigations, which are organized to focus on specific process aspects. The official documentation outlines:
* Option A (Create Chapters to break down specific topics):Investigations in Process Intelligence can be organized into Chapters, which allow analysts to group related analyses or topics (e.g., cycle time analysis, bottleneck identification) for better clarity and structure.
* Option C (Create Investigations for specific purposes):Investigations are the core organizational unit in Process Intelligence, created to analyze specific process questions or objectives, such as conformance checking or performance analysis.
* Option B (Create specific Data views)is incorrect because, while data views can be created to filter or visualize data, they are not a primary structural component of process analysis in the same way as Investigations or Chapters.
