- A. Non-working times and absences
- B. Fixed assignment to a vehicle resource
- C. Validity period
- D. Planning profile

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

In SAP S/4HANA Transportation Management, a business partner with the role Driver is defined in the master data with specific attributes. According to the SAP documentation:

* Non-working times and absences (C): These attributes specify the driver's availability, including holidays, vacations, or other non-working periods, critical for planning.

* Validity period (D): The validity period defines the time frame during which the driver is active in the system, ensuring assignments are time-relevant.

The other options are incorrect:

* Fixed assignment to a vehicle resource (A) is optional and managed in vehicle resource master data, not a mandatory driver attribute.

* Planning profile (B) is used for planning settings, not for defining driver attributes.

* Calculation sheet (A): The percentage indicator can be set in the calculation sheet to specify that certain charge types (e.g., fuel surcharge) are calculated as percentages of the base rate.

* Rate table (D): The percentage indicator is defined in the rate table to indicate that the rates stored within it are percentages, ensuring correct calculation during charge determination.

The other options are incorrect:

* Scale (B) defines the ranges for rates (e.g., weight or distance) but does not include a percentage indicator.

* Calculation profile (C) defines general calculation settings but does not directly control the percentage interpretation of rates.
