Cisco Designing and Implementing Secure Cloud Access for Users and Endpoints Sample Questions (Q115-Q120):

NEW QUESTION # 115

Refer to the exhibit. An engineer must configure Cisco ASA so that the Secure Client deployment is removed when the user laptop disconnects from the VPN. The indicated configuration was applied to the Cisco ASA firewall. Which command must be run to meet the requirement?

- A. client-bypass-protocol enable
- B. anyconnect firewall-rule client-interface
- C. anyconnect keep-installer none
- D. client-bypass-protocol disable

Answer: C

Explanation:

The anyconnect keep-installer none command is used to remove the Cisco Secure Client (formerly AnyConnect) from an endpoint once the VPN session ends. This is useful in temporary or kiosk-based access environments. The default behavior retains the client. This capability is covered in SCAZT Section 2: User and Device Security (Pages 40-44), which outlines VPN session lifecycle management and Secure Client policies.

NEW QUESTION # 116

Implementing a Web Application Firewall (WAF) for direct-internet-access applications ensures:

- A. An increase in latency and reduction in user satisfaction
- B. That all user data is publicly accessible
- C. A decrease in operational costs by eliminating other security tools
- D. Protection against web-based threats while maintaining application performance

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 117

In the zero-trust network access model, which criteria is used for continuous verification to modify trust levels?

- A. System patching status
- B. User and device behavior
- C. Detected threat levels
- D. Network traffic patterns

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Zero Trust model relies on the principle of "never trust, always verify" and includes continuous verification based on real-time data. According to SCAZT Section 1 (Cloud Security Architecture, Pages 14-17), user and device behavior are key elements for continuous verification. Behavioral analytics evaluates deviations from typical activity, such as time of login, geolocation, access frequency, and resource usage to adapt trust levels dynamically. This is central to adaptive access control and risk-based authentication.

NEW QUESTION # 118

The process of analyzing telemetry reports helps in:

- A. Reducing the efficiency of security operations
- B. Ignoring critical security alerts
- C. Determining the scope and impact of a security threat
- D. Focusing solely on external threats

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 119

Which mitigation technique does a web application firewall use to protect a web server against DDoS attacks?

- A. Standard ACL
- B. Packet filtering
- C. Rate-based rules
- D. Source-specific ACL

Answer: C

Explanation:

Web Application Firewalls (WAFs) use rate-based rules as one of the primary mechanisms to detect and mitigate Distributed Denial of Service (DDoS) attacks. According to the SCAZT Study Guide, Section 3 (Network and Cloud Security, Pages 74-77), rate-based rules dynamically detect unusual spikes in traffic and can throttle or block connections exceeding predefined thresholds. This form of protection is more adaptive and intelligent than standard ACLs or static filtering, enabling protection against zero-day and volumetric attacks that may not follow known patterns.
