VMware vSphere 8.x Advanced Design Sample Questions (Q17-Q22):

NEW QUESTION # 17

Which type of requirements describe specific tasks or operations that a system must perform?

- A. Capacity requirements
- B. Performance requirements
- C. Functional requirements
- D. SLA requirements

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 18

An architect is tasked with designing a greenfield VMware software-defined data center (SDDC) solution that will be used to deliver a private cloud service for a customer.

During the initial meeting with the service owner and business sponsor, the customer has provided the following information to help inform the design:

- The solution must initially support the concurrent running of 300 production and 600 development virtual machines.
- The production environment should be delivered across two geographically dispersed data centers.

The development environment must be vSphere-based but does not have to be deployed on-premises.

- The two data centers are connected to each other through multiple diversely routed, high bandwidth and low latency links.
- The customer's server hardware standard document states that all virtual infrastructure hosts must be based on blade architecture only.
- The service owner has said that is important to ensure that neither the availability target of 99.5% nor the resource capacity is affected when the operations team completes maintenance activities, such as the monthly software patching and ad-hoc hardware break/fix.
- All virtual machine backups must be completed using the existing backup service.
- The recovery time objective (RTO) for the service is four hours.
- The recovery point objective (RPO) of the service is 24 hours.

Given the information from the customer, which two would be classified as assumptions within the design? (Choose two.)

- A. The clusters will have a minimum redundancy of N+1
- B. All virtual machines will be deployed with the same resource profile for production and development
- C. The customer will update their hardware standard to support rack mount servers
- D. The backup service has sufficient capacity for the new requirements
- E. The backup service will store data in a secure facility

Answer: A,D

NEW QUESTION # 19

An architect is planning the physical server configuration for a vSAN-based infrastructure.

Which operations mode should a RAID controller support to minimize potential server downtime during physical disk failures?

- A. RAID controller with RAID 10 mode
- B. RAID controller with RAID 5 mode
- C. RAID controller with Passthru mode
- D. RAID controller with RAID 6 mode

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 20

A company is expanding and will be deploying new vSphere environments in multiple new locations. All environments use datastores backed by multiple storage technologies and vendors.

How can the architect create a design to efficiently and repeatedly distribute existing company virtual machine (VM) templates to multiple new locations?

- A. Create a published content library and have the new locations subscribe to it.
- B. Upload company templates to a cloud provider and download to each new location.
- C. Use storage array replication tools to replicate the storage volume holding the company VM templates to each remote site.
- D. Create a local content library at each site and manually copy only needed templates.

Answer: A

Explanation:

This option allows for a centralized repository of VM templates that can be efficiently and repeatedly distributed to multiple locations. By creating a published content library, you enable the new locations to subscribe to this library, ensuring that the templates are synchronized and easily accessible. This approach minimizes manual effort and ensures consistency across all sites.

NEW QUESTION # 21

An architect is designing a new vSphere platform to meet a list of requirements from the security team. Which two requirements would be classified as non-functional requirements- (Choose two.)

- A. Critical events generated within the platform must be logged to an external Syslog service
- B. Log information must be verbose to support incident resolution
- C. A common content library must be maintained across all data centers
- D. Migration of virtual machines between hosts must be encrypted
- E. Data integrity must be ensured

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

NFR provides attribute of a use case or a function.

A - Migration support could be a FR, but as it says encrypted it becomes NFR.

B - Logging would be a FR but calling out it should be verbose makes it NFR.
