Archer Certified Administrator-Expert Sample Questions (Q56-Q61):

NEW QUESTION # 56
You are an Archer administrator. You have an Apply Conditional Layout (CL) action that is supposed to display a Details section, but users do not see the section until they click Save. What is the probable cause of this behavior?

- A. The rule associated with this action contains a Date field.
- B. The Details section is private.
- C. The rule associated with this action contains a Calculated field.
- D. The user does not have access to a field referenced in the rule associated with this action.

Answer: C

Explanation:
This is a critical performance and behavior concept taught in Archer Administration II . Conditional Layout (CL) rules are intended to be "dynamic," meaning they should fire as the user interacts with the record (on-the- fly). However, Archer's Calculation Engine primarily runs on the server side during a "Save" event. If a CL rule depends on the value of a Calculated Field , the UI cannot determine the rule's outcome until the calculation has been processed by the database.

Consequently, the section remains hidden while the user is editing because the calculated value hasn't been updated in the current session yet. To make CL rules fire "instantly" before a save, administrators should use non-calculated fields (like Values Lists or Text fields) as the trigger. If a calculated field must be used, the behavior described-where the layout only updates after the record is committed to the database-is the expected platform limitation. Options C and D would not specifically cause a "save-only" refresh; a Date field (unless it is a calculated date) would trigger the CL rule immediately upon selection.

NEW QUESTION # 57

What happens when an administrator selects to cascade private field permissions for a group?

- A. Only members of the selected group and its child groups would have access to the field.
- B. Members of the selected group would NOT have access to the field; members of child groups would have access to the field.
- C. Only members of the selected group would have access to the field; members of any child groups would NOT have access to the field.
- D. Members of the selected group and members of its child groups would have access to the field.

Answer: D

Explanation:
In Archer, Private Fields are a high-security feature where access is restricted to specific Users or Groups, regardless of their Access Role permissions. When an administrator manages these permissions, the concept of Cascading is vital for hierarchy management.

As taught in Archer Administration II , if you grant a parent group access to a private field and select the "Cascade" option, Archer automatically extends those permissions to every child group within that hierarchy.

This follows the standard inheritance model used throughout the platform's security architecture. Without cascading (Option C), only the direct members of the parent group would see the field data, and administrators would have to manually add every subgroup individually. Selecting cascade ensures that as the organization grows and new subgroups are added under the parent, those new members will automatically inherit the necessary access to view or edit the protected field.

NEW QUESTION # 58

When importing data through the Data Import Wizard, if you choose the Import Type as "Update Existing Records", which of the following is true?

- A. Matching records will be updated and unmatched records will be added as new records.
- B. Matching records will be discarded and unmatched records will be added as new records.
- C. Matching records will be updated and unmatched records will be discarded.
- D. A number of the matching records will be updated.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 59

Using LDAP an Administrator can do which of the following? Select all that apply:

- A. Reflect user changes from Archer to organization's directory server
- B. Allow updates and changes made in the organization's directory server to automatically reflect in Archer
- C. Make users login to Archer automatically without username and password
- D. Synchronize an organizations Directory users and groups with an Archer Instance

Answer: B,D

Explanation:
The Archer LDAP Synchronization service is a "one-way" synchronization tool from the Directory Server (e.g., Active Directory) to Archer.

* A and D are correct: The service allows for the synchronization of users and groups (D), ensuring that any updates-such as name changes, department updates, or account deactivations (A)-made in the directory server are mirrored in Archer.

* B is incorrect: LDAP Synchronization does not facilitate "automatic" login (SSO). While LDAP Authentication can be used to verify a password, the seamless "no username/password" experience is provided by Windows Integrated SSO or SAML, which are distinct from the synchronization service.

* C is incorrect: Archer cannot write back to the organization's directory server. It is a consumer of LDAP data, not a manager of it. Changes made in Archer (like updating a phone number in the User Profile) will not be pushed back to Active Directory; in fact, they will likely be overwritten by the next LDAP sync.

NEW QUESTION # 60
Select the service which must always run for Archer to properly function.

- A. Queuing service
- B. Job Engine service
- C. Configuration service
- D. LDAP Synchronization service

Answer: C

Explanation:
As detailed in the Archer Installation and Troubleshooting guide, the Archer Configuration Service is the foundational "heartbeat" of the platform. While the Job Engine (Option D) and Queuing Service (Option B) are essential for processing background tasks, the system cannot initialize or connect to the instance database without the Configuration Service.
The Configuration Service is responsible for retrieving settings from the Archer Control Panel (ACP) and providing them to the web server and other services. If this service is stopped, the Archer web interface will fail to load, and administrators will be unable to make any changes to the instance through the ACP. LDAP Synchronization (Option C) is a scheduled task and does not need to be running constantly for the platform to remain operational. Therefore, from an architectural standpoint, the Configuration Service is the mandatory prerequisite for all other platform functions.
