Questions (Q38-Q43):

NEW QUESTION # 38

Which component of Retrieval-Augmented Generation (RAG) evaluates and prioritizes the information retrieved by the retrieval system?

- A. Retriever
- B. Generator
- C. Encoder-Decoder
- D. Ranker

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation=

In RAG, the Ranker evaluates and prioritizes retrieved information (e.g., documents) based on relevance to the query, refining what the Retriever fetches-Option D is correct. The Retriever (A) fetches data, not ranks it. Encoder-Decoder (B) isn't a distinct RAG component-it's part of the LLM. The Generator (C) produces text, not prioritizes. Ranking ensures high-quality inputs for generation.

OCI 2025 Generative AI documentation likely details the Ranker under RAG pipeline components.

NEW QUESTION # 39

What is the purpose of memory in the LangChain framework?

- A. To act as a static database for storing permanent records
- B. To perform complex calculations unrelated to user interaction
- C. To retrieve user input and provide real-time output only
- D. To store various types of data and provide algorithms for summarizing past interactions

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation=

In LangChain, memory stores contextual data (e.g., chat history) and provides mechanisms to summarize or recall past interactions, enabling coherent, context-aware conversations. This makes Option B correct. Option A is too limited, as memory does more than just input/output handling. Option C is unrelated, as memory focuses on interaction context, not abstract calculations. Option D is inaccurate, as memory is dynamic, not a static database. Memory is crucial for stateful applications.

OCI 2025 Generative AI documentation likely discusses memory under LangChain's context management features.

NEW QUESTION # 40

In which scenario is soft prompting especially appropriate compared to other training styles?

- A. When there is a need to add learnable parameters to a Large Language Model (LLM) without task-specific training.
- B. When the model requires continued pre-training on unlabeled data.
- C. When there is a significant amount of labeled, task-specific data available.
- D. When the model needs to be adapted to perform well in a different domain it was not originally trained on.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation=

Soft prompting (e.g., prompt tuning) involves adding trainable parameters (soft prompts) to an LLM's input while keeping the model's weights frozen, adapting it to tasks without task-specific retraining. This is efficient when fine-tuning or large datasets aren't feasible, making Option C correct. Option A suits full fine-tuning, not soft prompting, which avoids extensive labeled data needs. Option B could apply, but domain adaptation often requires more than soft prompting (e.g., fine-tuning). Option D describes continued pretraining, not soft prompting. Soft prompting excels in low-resource customization.

OCI 2025 Generative AI documentation likely discusses soft prompting under parameter-efficient methods.

NEW QUESTION # 41

What is the purpose of Retrievers in LangChain?

- A. To retrieve relevant information from knowledge bases
- B. To train Large Language Models
- C. To combine multiple components into a single pipeline
- D. To break down complex tasks into smaller steps

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation=

Retrievers in LangChain fetch relevant information (e.g., documents, embeddings) from external knowledge bases (like vector stores) to provide context for LLM responses, especially in RAG setups. This makes Option B correct. Option A (training) is unrelated-Retrievers operate at inference. Option C (task breakdown) pertains to prompting techniques, not retrieval. Option D (pipeline combination) describes chains, not Retrievers specifically. Retrievers enhance context awareness.

OCI 2025 Generative AI documentation likely defines Retrievers under LangChain components.

NEW QUESTION # 42

Which is a cost-related benefit of using vector databases with Large Language Models (LLMs)?

- A. They increase the cost due to the need for real-time updates.
- B. They are more expensive but provide higher quality data.
- C. They require frequent manual updates, which increase operational costs.
- D. They offer real-time updated knowledge bases and are cheaper than fine-tuned LLMs.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation=

Vector databases enable real-time knowledge retrieval for LLMs (e.g., in RAG), avoiding the high computational and data costs of fine-tuning an LLM for every update. They store embeddings efficiently, making them a cost-effective alternative to retraining, thus Option B is correct. Option A is false-updates are automated, not manual. Option C misrepresents-real-time capability reduces, not increases, costs compared to fine-tuning. Option D is incorrect-vector databases aren't inherently more expensive; they optimize cost and performance. This makes them economical for dynamic applications.

OCI 2025 Generative AI documentation likely highlights vector database cost benefits under RAG or data management sections.
