NEW QUESTION # 85
A security engineer needs to monitor an AI-based system for runtime operations. The engineer is mostly concerned about the visibility of internal activity. Which of the following is the most appropriate monitoring solution?

- A. Deploying a security information and event management (SIEM) tool
- B. Enabling stack call and debugging level traces at the function level
- C. Relying on vendor model controls and monitoring prompt inputs
- D. Implementing a web application firewall (WAF) with header logging

Answer: B

Explanation:
For runtime visibility into internal activity of an AI system, the most suitable control is enabling stack calls and debugging-level traces. This provides granular insights into function-level execution, dependencies, and operations, which directly supports monitoring of runtime behavior.

Explanation:
Cloud control plane: IAM policies, Resource policies
Prompt firewall: Injection policies, Output monitoring
WAF: Connection rate limits, Input token validation
Front-end API + Model + Vector database: Guardrails, Input quota
API gateway: Load balancing, Authentication token validation
Cloud control plane relies on IAM and resource policies to enforce centralized identity and access management as well as usage restrictions.
Prompt firewall protects against malicious input via injection policies and ensures outputs are monitored for compliance and safety.
WAF controls connection rate to mitigate DoS and validates input tokens to stop unauthorized access attempts.
Front-end API, Model, and Vector database share guardrails to restrict unsafe behaviors and input quotas to prevent overuse, making them consistent and efficient security points.
API gateway enforces load balancing for availability and validates authentication tokens at the entry point, providing secure and scalable access.
