問題 #568

A customer reports high data usage on a smartphone that reaches its monthly data limit within the first week of each billing cycle. The customer uses the phone primarily for calls and SMS messages with minimal content streaming. A technician troubleshoots the phone and notices that both developer mode and installs from unknown sources are enabled. Which of the following should the technician check next?

- A. Malicious applications
- B. Storage cache
- C. Privacy settings
- D. Permissions

答案： A

解題說明：

Since both developer mode and the ability to install apps from unknown sources are enabled, the technician should check for Malicious applications (Option B). Unknown sources can allow unverified apps that may include malware or apps that use excessive background data without the user's knowledge. Checking for malicious apps is essential in this scenario.

* Storage cache (Option A) would not typically cause high data usage.

* Privacy settings (Option C) control data sharing and permissions but don't directly impact data usage.

* Permissions (Option D) might help identify apps using data, but the focus should be on apps that could be malicious.

- A. Perform a System Restore.
- B. Replace the hard drive.
- C. Open Disk Cleanup.
- D. Run CHKDSK.

答案: D

解題說明:

The correct answer is D. Run CHKDSK (Check Disk).

Running this tool first can determine whether the hard drive is experiencing file system corruption or physical failure.

* If CHKDSK reports bad sectors or extensive corruption, it indicates that the drive is failing, and data backup should be performed immediately before replacing the drive.

* Syntax Example:chkdsk /f/r

Syntax Example:chkdsk /f/r

Syntax Example:chkdsk /f/r

* /f - Fixes file system errors.

* /r - Locates bad sectors and recovers readable information.

Why Other Options Are Incorrect:

* A. Perform a System Restore - System Restore can revert system settings, but it does not fix hardware issues like a failing hard drive.

* B. Open Disk Cleanup - Disk Cleanup removes temporary files but does not diagnose or repair disk issues.

* C. Replace the hard drive - While replacement may be necessary, a technician should first diagnose the issue using CHKDSK before determining if the drive needs to be replaced.

問題 #571

A technician is working on a way to register all employee badges and associated computer IDs. Which of the following options should the technician use in order to achieve this objective?

- A. Database system
- B. Active Directory description
- C. Software management
- D. Infrastructure as a Service

答案: A

解題說明:

A database system is a software application that allows storing, organizing, and managing data in a structured way. A database system can be used to register all employee badges and associated computer IDs by creating a table or a record for each employee that contains their badge number, computer ID, name, and other relevant information. A database system can also facilitate searching, updating, and deleting data as needed. Software management is a general term that refers to the process of planning, developing, testing, deploying, and maintaining software applications. It does not directly address the issue of registering employee badges and computer IDs. Active Directory description is a field in Active Directory that can be used to store additional information about an object, such as a user or a computer. It is not a software application that can be used to register employee badges and computer IDs by itself. Infrastructure as a Service (IaaS) is a cloud computing model that provides servers, storage, networking, and software over the internet. It does not directly address the issue of registering employee badges and computer IDs either.
