Google Certified Professional - Cloud Developer Sample Questions (Q235-Q240):

NEW QUESTION # 235
You are using Cloud Build build to promote a Docker image to Development, Test, and Production environments. You need to ensure that the same Docker image is deployed to each of these environments.
How should you identify the Docker image in your build?

- A. Use a semantic version Docker image tag.
- B. Use the latest Docker image tag.
- C. Use a unique Docker image name.
- D. Use the digest of the Docker image.

Answer: D

Explanation:

NEW QUESTION # 236
You are developing an application hosted on Google Cloud that uses a MySQL relational database schema. The application will have a large volume of reads and writes to the database and will require backups and ongoing capacity planning. Your team does not have time to fully manage the database but can take on small administrative tasks. How should you host the database?

- A. Configure Cloud Spanner to host the database, and import the schema into Cloud Spanner.
- B. Configure Cloud SQL to host the database, and import the schema into Cloud SQL.
- C. Configure Firestore to host the database, and import the data into Firestore.
- D. Configure Bigtable to host the database, and import the data into Bigtable.
- E. Deploy MySQL from the Google Cloud Marketplace to the database using a client, and import the schema.

Answer: B

Explanation:
https://cloud.google.com/sql/docs/mysql
Cloud SQL for MySQL is a fully-managed database service that helps you set up, maintain, manage, and administer your MySQL relational databases on Google Cloud Platform.

NEW QUESTION # 237
Please refer to the following information to answer the questions on the right.
Rachel is starting a repair on a three-year-old MacBook Pro.
After opening the device, she takes some time to visually inspect the top case assembly with battery.
After gaining agreement with the customer about repair time and cost, Rachel begins the replacement of the top case assembly with battery. If during the repair the battery cells begin to actively swell, how should Rachel respond?

- A. Pour sand over the battery immediately.
- B. Carefully continue the repair while monitoring the battery.
- C. Find a fire extinguisher and keep it nearby.
- D. Leave the room for fifteen minutes.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 238
You are a developer at a financial institution. You use Cloud Shell to interact with Google Cloud services. User data is currently stored on an ephemeral disk; however, a recently passed regulation mandates that you can no longer store sensitive information on an ephemeral disk.
You need to implement a new storage solution for your user data. You want to minimize code changes. Where should you store your user data?

- A. Store user data in BigQuery tables.

- B. Store user data on a persistent disk in a Compute Engine instance.
- C. Store user data on a Cloud Shell home disk, and log in at least every 120 days to prevent its deletion.
- D. Store user data in a Cloud Storage bucket.

Answer: B

Explanation:
Store user data in a Cloud Storage bucket is a good option for storing large amounts of data, but if you need to minimize code changes, using a persistent disk in a Compute Engine instance may be a better fit as it provides a more direct replacement for an ephemeral disk with similar access patterns, which will likely require fewer changes to your existing code. Storing user data in a Cloud Storage bucket would likely require more significant changes to how your application interacts with the data.

NEW QUESTION # 239
You are developing a flower ordering application Currently you have three microservices.
* Order Service (receives the orders).
* Order Fulfillment Service (processes the orders).
* Notification Service (notifies the customer when the order is filled).
You need to determine how the services will communicate with each other. You want incoming orders to be processed quickly and you need to collect order information for fulfillment. You also want to make sure orders are not lost between your services and are able to communicate asynchronously. How should the requests be processed?

- A.

- B.

- C.

Order request → Order Service → Firestore database → Order Fulfillment Service → Firestore database → Notification Service

- D.

Order request → Order Service → Pub/Sub queue → Order Fulfillment Service → Firestore database → Pub/Sub queue → Notification Service
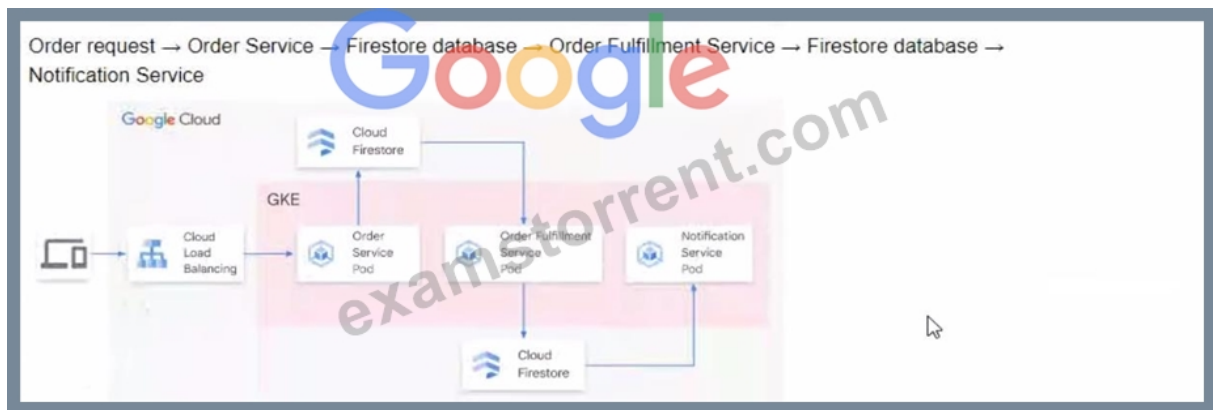

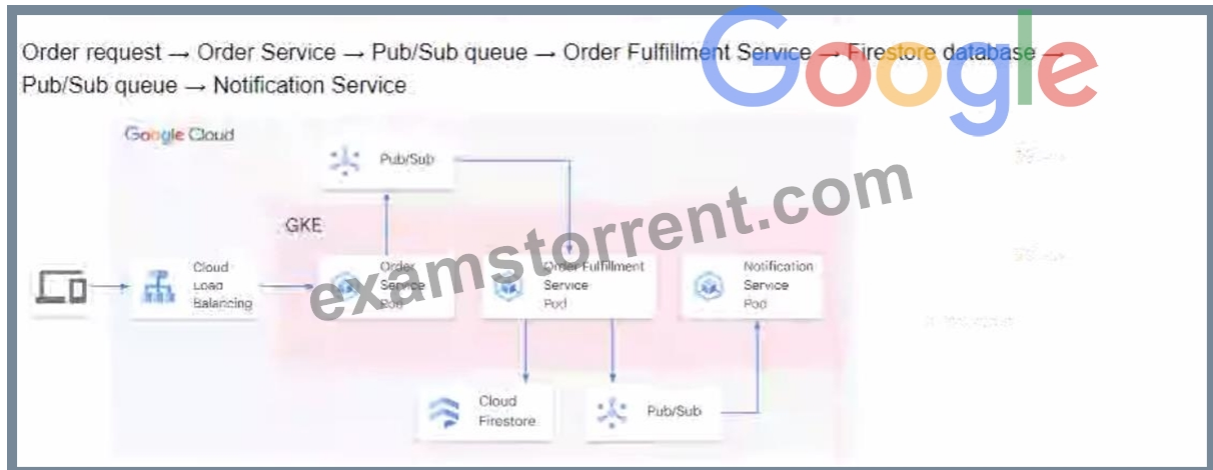

Answer: B
