IIBA Entry Certificate in Business Analysis (ECBA) Sample Questions (Q126-Q131):

NEW QUESTION # 126

When planning business analysis information management, what are the factors that influence storage and access decisions?

- A. Business rules and change strategy
- B. Organizational standards and tool availability
- C. Organizational values and procurement strategy
- D. Business policies and methodology adopted

Answer: B

Explanation:

Business analysis information can be stored in many ways. Storage decisions depend on many factors such as who must access the information, how often they need to access it, and what conditions must be present for access. Organizational standards and tool availability also influence storage and access decisions. The business analysis approach defines how various tools will be used on the initiative and how the information will be captured and stored within those tools. Tools may shape the selection of business analysis techniques, notations to be used, and the way that information is organized.

NEW QUESTION # 127

What is the optimum group size for brainstorming?

- A. Six to eight individuals who represent a range of backgrounds
- B. The more individuals the better
- C. A maximum of three individuals with a deep knowledge of the subject
- D. It doesn't matter how many individuals as long as the project manager is included

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 128

When stakeholder collaboration is not properly managed, poor relationships can have the following damaging effect on business analysis:

- A. failure to meet project deadlines.
- B. resistance to approving elicitation results.
- C. lack of support for organizational goals.
- D. strong negative reactions to obstacles.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Poorly managed stakeholder collaboration can lead to detrimental effects on the business analysis process, one of which is resistance to approving elicitation results. When stakeholder relationships are not adequately maintained, stakeholders may lack trust in the business analysis process and its outcomes, leading to reluctance or resistance in confirming and approving the information gathered during elicitation. This resistance can stem from a lack of engagement, poor communication, or misunderstandings about the change's impact, ultimately hindering the progression and success of business analysis activities by impacting the quality of information and stakeholder participation.

NEW QUESTION # 129

Which activity is a business analyst (BA) performing when ensuring that a set of requirements is developed with enough detail to be usable by a particular stakeholder?

- A. Specifying requirements
- B. Validating requirements
