NEW QUESTION # 21

An administrator needs to attach a network interface to a Flow Gateway VM.

What option should be enabled in the Azure portal and in the OS of the Flow gateway VM to meet this network requirement?

- A. Port Tagging
- B. Dynamic Route
- C. IP Forwarding
- D. Static Route

Answer: C

Explanation:

IP Forwarding in Azure: Enabling IP forwarding allows the VM to forward network traffic that is not specifically addressed to itself. This is necessary for network devices like the Flow Gateway VM to route traffic correctly.

Network Interface Configuration: Both the Azure portal settings and the VM's operating system must have IP forwarding enabled to ensure proper traffic handling and routing capabilities.

NEW QUESTION # 22

An administrator is planning to expand an NC2 on Azure cluster.

Which statement is true regarding prerequisites for expanding the cluster?

- A. Cluster must have at least three nodes.
- B. Cluster must be in a Cluster Stopped state.
- C. Cluster must be in a Cluster Connected state.
- D. Cluster must have at least five nodes.

Answer: C

Explanation:

* Cluster State Requirement: To expand a cluster, it must be operational and in a connected state to ensure seamless integration of additional nodes.

* Cluster Stopped State: If the cluster is stopped, it cannot perform expansion operations.

* Minimum Nodes Requirement: There is no minimum node count prerequisite for expanding the cluster as long as the cluster is connected.

* Cluster Connected State: Ensuring the cluster is connected verifies that it is operational and can communicate with additional nodes being added.

* Conclusion: The cluster must be in a Cluster Connected state to expand successfully.
