HashiCorp Certified: Terraform Associate (003) (HCTA0-003) Sample Questions (Q195-Q200):

NEW QUESTION # 195

You must use different Terraform commands depending on the cloud provider you use.

- A. True
- B. False

Answer: B

Explanation:

You do not need to use different Terraform commands depending on the cloud provider you use. Terraform commands are consistent across different providers, as they operate on the Terraform configuration files and state files, not on the provider APIs directly.

NEW QUESTION # 196

How would you output returned values from a child module in the Terraform CLI output?

- A. Declare the output in both the root and child module
- B. Declare the output in the child module
- C. Declare the output in the root configuration
- D. None of the above

Answer: A

Explanation:

To output returned values from a child module in the Terraform CLI output, you need to declare the output in both the child module and the root module. The child module output will return the value to the root module, and the root module output will display the value in the CLI. Reference = [Terraform Outputs]

NEW QUESTION # 197

Terraform variable names are saved in the state file.

- A. True
- B. False

Answer: B

Explanation:

Terraform variable names are not saved in the state file, only their values are. The state file only stores the attributes of the resources and data sources that are managed by Terraform, not the variables that are used to configure them.

NEW QUESTION # 198

While attempting to deploy resources into your cloud provider using Terraform, you begin to see some odd behavior and experience slow responses. In order to troubleshoot you decide to turn on Terraform debugging. Which environment variables must be configured to make Terraform's logging more verbose?

- A. TF_LOG_PAIRH
- B. TF_LOG
- C. TF_VAR_log_level
- D. TF_VAR_log_path

Answer: B

Explanation:

To make Terraform's logging more verbose for troubleshooting purposes, you must configure the TF_LOG environment variable. This variable controls the level of logging and can be set to TRACE, DEBUG, INFO, WARN, or ERROR, with TRACE providing the most verbose output.

Reference = Detailed debugging instructions and the use of environment variables like TF_LOG for increasing verbosity are part of Terraform's standard debugging practices

NEW QUESTION # 199

When should you run terraform init?

- A. After you start coding a new terraform project and before you run terraform plan for the first time.
- B. Before you start coding a new Terraform project
- C. Every time you run terraform apply
- D. After you run terraform plan for the time in a new terraform project and before you run terraform apply

Answer: A

Explanation:

You should run terraform init after you start coding a new Terraform project and before you run terraform plan for the first time. This command will initialize the working directory by downloading the required providers and modules, creating the initial state file, and performing other necessary tasks. Reference = : Initialize a Terraform Project
