- D. event manager applet boom

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

To enable the action of printing data directly to the local tty when an Embedded Event Manager (EEM) applet is triggered, use the command in applet configuration mode.

The following example shows how to print data directly to the local tty:

```

Router(config-applet)# event manager applet puts Router(config-applet)# event none
Router(config-applet)# action 1 regexp "(.) (.) (.*)" "one two three" _match _sub1
Router(config-applet)# action 2 puts "match is S_match"
Router(config-applet)# action 3 puts "submatch 1 is S_sub1" Router# event manager run puts match is one two three submatch 1 is one
Router#

The action puts command applies to synchronous events. The output of this command for a synchronous applet is directly displayed to the tty, bypassing the syslog.

NEW QUESTION # 241

Which statement about LISP encapsulation in an EIGRP OTP implementation is true?

- A. LISP learns the next hop
- B. OTP uses LISP encapsulation to obtain routes from neighbors
- C. OTP uses LISP encapsulation for dynamic multipoint tunneling
- D. OTP maintains the LISP control plane

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

The EIGRP Over the Top solution can be used to ensure connectivity between disparate EIGRP sites. This feature uses EIGRP on the control plane and Locator ID Separation Protocol (LISP) encapsulation on the data plane to route traffic across the underlying WAN architecture. EIGRP is used to distribute routes between customer edge (CE) devices within the network, and the traffic forwarded across the WAN architecture is LISP encapsulated.

EIGRP OTP only uses LISP for the data plane, EIGRP is still used for the control plane. Therefore we cannot say OTP uses LISP encapsulation for dynamic multipoint tunneling as this requires encapsulating both data and control plane traffic -> Answer 'OTP uses LISP encapsulation for dynamic multipoint tunneling' is not correct.

In OTP, EIGRP serves as the replacement for LISP control plane protocols (therefore EIGRP will learn the next hop, not LISP -> Answer 'LISP learns the next hop' is not correct). Instead of doing dynamic EID-to-RLOC mappings in native LISP-mapping services, EIGRP routers running OTP over a service provider cloud create targeted sessions, use the IP addresses provided by the service provider as RLOCs, and exchange routes as EIDs. Let's take an example:
