NEW QUESTION # 112

Funds collected and spent to carry out an unemployment program established by federal statute are deposited in

- A. revolving funds.
- B. enterprise funds.
- C. trust funds.
- D. general funds.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Unemployment programs, such as those established by federal law (e.g., Unemployment Insurance), are typically funded through employment taxes and administered through federal trust funds. These funds are earmarked for specific purposes and are deposited into trust fund accounts, which are fiduciary in nature and maintained to provide benefits under the terms of a law or trust agreement. The Unemployment Trust Fund is a specific example maintained by the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

NEW QUESTION # 113

Congress plans to set up an activity within an agency that would:

- * provide procurement services to other agencies;
- * reimburse fees to the providing agency at a level that would cover the total estimated costs of the services.

The fees would be deposited in the providing agency's accounts and would remain available until expended, to carry out the purposes of the fund. This arrangement describes a

- A. revolving fund.
- B. trust fund.
- C. special fund.
- D. general fund.

Answer: A

Explanation:

A revolving fund is a fund established to finance a continuing cycle of operations where the receipts (e.g., fees or reimbursements) are used to finance future operations. These funds are usually self-sustaining and are designed to recover full costs of providing goods or services.

The described situation - an agency providing procurement services to other agencies and using collected fees to continue operations - is a classic example of an intragovernmental revolving fund (also called a working capital fund).
