AVIXA Certified Technology Specialist Sample Questions (Q108-Q113):

NEW QUESTION # 108

After there is an approved labor change to a project, what should the project manager do NEXT?

- A. order the equipment
- B. issue an invoice for the change
- C. update the schedule
- D. inform the purchasing department

Answer: C

Explanation:

Once a labor change is approved, the next step for the project manager is to update the project schedule.

Changes in labor can affect the timeline of the project, and updating the schedule ensures that all stakeholders are aware of the new timelines and can adjust their plans accordingly. This step is critical for maintaining project organization and ensuring that the project stays on track despite the changes.

NEW QUESTION # 109

What device should be used to send a single video signal to several monitors?

- A. Frame synchronizer
- B. Matrix mixer
- C. Distribution amplifier
- D. Passive switcher

Answer: C

Explanation:

A distribution amplifier (DA) is designed to take a single input signal and replicate it across multiple outputs without degradation in quality. It maintains signal integrity across longer distances and multiple destinations, which is essential when distributing video to several monitors.

NEW QUESTION # 110

If the nominal light output of a projector was measured at 5000 ANSI lumens using an f/1.4 lens, what would happen if the lens was changed to an f/2.8 large zoom?

- A. The projected image will be darker
- B. The screen will need to be changed to 1:1 gain
- C. The projected image will be brighter
- D. The screen will need to be changed to a high contrast screen

Answer: A

Explanation:

The f-number (aperture) of a lens determines how much light passes through. An f/2.8 lens allows less light than an f/1.4 lens, resulting in a dimmer image. Specifically, each full f-stop reduces the light by a factor of four. So switching from f/1.4 to f/2.8 cuts the light significantly.

"The larger the f-number, the smaller the lens opening and the less light is transmitted, which reduces image brightness."

NEW QUESTION # 111

While troubleshooting a DSP, the AV technician notices that the DHCP server has failed due to the control system not being able to control the volume of the DSP. In order to restore the same IP, the control programmer requires a unique identifier assigned to the network interface card of the DSP. What is the name of that address?

- A. internet protocol address
- B. network address translation
- C. digital multiplex exchange address
- D. media access control

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive Detailed Explanation with all Technology Specialist References:

The unique identifier assigned to a network interface card (NIC) is known as the Media Access Control (MAC) address. A MAC address is a hardware address that is permanently embedded into the network interface of a device, such as a DSP, and is used to uniquely identify it on a local network.

When DHCP fails, the control programmer may need the MAC address to reassign the same IP address, as DHCP reservations are often based on MAC addresses. This ensures that devices receive a consistent IP address each time they connect, which is crucial for network devices in an AV system that rely on static IPs for control purposes.

Option B, "internet protocol address," refers to the IP address, which is assigned to a device but not unique to the hardware, as it can change over time. Option C, "network address translation," is a method for modifying IP address information as it passes through a router. Option D, "digital multiplex exchange address," is not relevant in this context and does not pertain to IP networking or AV control systems.

NEW QUESTION # 112

Assuming that the screen and projector are both Ethernet controllable devices, where does the control system for the AV solution need to exist?

- A. in a dedicated rack in the room
- B. above the projector, plugged into the serial port on the projector
- C. in the rear projection room
- D. connected to the network

Answer: D

Explanation:

The control system for the AV solution, assuming both the screen and projector are Ethernet controllable devices, needs to be connected to the network. This allows for centralized control, remote access, and management of the AV devices, ensuring seamless integration and operation. Axis documentation emphasizes the importance of network connectivity for managing Ethernet-enabled AV equipment effectively.
