Google Cloud Digital Leader Sample Questions (Q413-Q418):

NEW QUESTION # 413

An organization is concerned about their cloud costs. They want to be informed when their spending exceeds a specific threshold, rather than waiting to see their bill at the end of the month. What should the organization do?

- A. Adjust project resource quota policies.
- B. Use historical cost data to predict future overspend.
- C. Configure a budget threshold rule and alert.
- D. Pause virtual machines during non-business hours.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The correct answer is A. Configure a budget threshold rule and alert. Here's why:

* Context of the Question: The organization wants to be informed when their cloud spending exceeds a specific threshold to manage costs proactively rather than finding out at the end of the month.

* Google Cloud Product Relevance:

* Google Cloud offers a budget and alerting feature in the Cloud Billing platform. Organizations can set up a budget for their cloud expenditures and create threshold alerts that notify them when spending reaches a specified percentage of the budget (e.g., 50%, 90%, or 100%).

* This feature helps organizations monitor their cloud costs in real-time and take action to prevent overspending, ensuring better financial management and cost optimization.

* Why Not Other Options:

* B. Pause virtual machines during non-business hours: This action could save costs but does not provide an alert mechanism based on budget thresholds.

* C. Adjust project resource quota policies: Adjusting resource quotas can limit resource use but does not provide cost monitoring or alerting capabilities.

* D. Use historical cost data to predict future overspend: While historical data can help with budgeting and forecasting, it does not provide real-time alerts for current spending.

Google Cloud Digital Leader References:

* Refer to Google Cloud's Budget and alerts documentation for more details on configuring budget alerts.

NEW QUESTION # 417

What is the difference between Standard and Coldline storage?

- A. Coldline storage is for infrequently accessed data.
- B. Coldline storage is for data for which a slow transfer rate is acceptable.
- C. Standard and Coldline storage use different APIs.
- D. Standard and Coldline storage have different durability guarantees.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Reference:

Google Cloud Coldline is a new cold-tier storage for archival data with access frequency of less than once per year. Unlike other cold storage options, Nearline has no delays prior to data access, so now it is the leading solution among competitors.

The main characteristics of Coldline are as follows:

- SLA guarantees 99% data availability (of ten thousand hours, data can be offline for up to 100 hours).
- Monthly fee per GB stored is between $0.004-$0.014, depending on a region.
- The minimum storing period is 90 days. If you delete data earlier, you have to pay for the remaining time. For example, if you had uploaded 100GB of data and then deleted it after 30 days, you need to pay extra $1.4 as an early deletion fee ($0.004 (or $0.014) * 100 GB * 2 months).
- Data retrieval fee is mandatory and costs $0.05 per GB.

Its low price and a long minimum storing period make Nearline the best solution for data that is unlikely to be accessed more than once a year, if ever:

- Data archive.
- Disaster recovery storage.
- Outdated backups storage.

When using Coldline or Nearline Storage, you also pay more for requests, e.g., retrieval of metadata or download commands.
