NEW QUESTION # 182
What is the purpose of building a continuous delivery pipeline?

- A. To deliver new functionality more frequently than with traditional processes
- B. To prioritize system stability over development speed
- C. To identify key stakeholders within the system architecture
- D. To prioritize development speed over system stability

Answer: A

Explanation:
The purpose of building a continuous delivery pipeline is to enable a streamlined and automated process of delivering software value to the end users. A continuous delivery pipeline consists of four aspects: continuous exploration, continuous integration, continuous deployment, and release on demand. These aspects work together to support the delivery of small batches of new functionality, which are then released to fulfill market demand. Building and maintaining a continuous delivery pipeline allows each Agile Release Train (ART) to deliver new functionality to users far more frequently than with traditional processes, which often involve long and complex release cycles. By delivering value more frequently, the ART can respond faster to customer feedback, reduce waste, improve quality, and increase business agility. Release Governance is the process that guides the final approval for a release in SAFe. It involves a set of roles and responsibilities that ensure the quality, compliance, and fitness for purpose of the solution before it is released to customers. Release Governance also coordinates the timing and frequency of releases based on market demand and business needs. Release Governance is part of the Release on Demand aspect of the Continuous Delivery Pipeline, which is the fourth and last element in the four-part pipeline of Continuous Exploration, Continuous Integration, Continuous Deployment, and Release on Demand. NEW QUESTION # 184

Three members of Team C created a new workflow to speed up the testing process. They spent an entire Iteration designing the process but discovered, just before implementation, that the system could not support the workflow. The rest of the team was excited to hear what was learned from the failed experiment. Which of the following characteristics of a high-performing Agile Team is Team C demonstrating?

- A. Fostering an environment for taking risks without fear of embarrassment or punishment
- B. Trust each other, allowing for both healthy conflict and reliance on others
- C. Enjoy their work and working together
- D. Accountable to each other and the organization for reliably completing quality work

Answer: A

Explanation:
This statement is one of the characteristics of a high-performing Agile Team according to the Scaled Agile Framework (SAFe)1. It means that the team members are encouraged to experiment, learn, and innovate, without being afraid of making mistakes or being judged by others. The team members view failures as opportunities for improvement and celebrate the learnings from them. Team C is demonstrating this characteristic by creating a new workflow to speed up the testing process, even though it did not work out as expected. The rest of the team was excited to hear what was learned from the failed experiment, rather than blaming or criticizing the three members who worked on it. References: Agile Teams
