ISQI IREB Certified Professional for Requirements Engineering. Foundation Level Sample Questions (Q91-Q96):

NEW QUESTION # 91

In regard to configurations and baselines in RE, it is INCORRECT to say that:

- A. The sprint backlog in an agile project should not be used as a baseline at the beginning of the next iteration.
- B. A configuration always has 2 dimensions: product and version.
- C. A baseline is a stable, validated, and change-controlled configuration that marks a milestone or another kind of resting point in the project.
- D. A configuration should be unchangeable.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 92

Writing requirements using natural language can be improved by the following actions, EXCEPT:

- A. Using universal quantifiers with care.
- B. Not writing short sentences.
- C. Using glossaries.
- D. Having caution when using nominalizations.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

The syllabus lists several recommendations for clearer natural-language requirements: use short, well-structured sentences; avoid or carefully manage nominalizations (turning verbs into nouns); be cautious with universal quantifiers such as "always" or "all"; and use project glossaries for consistent terminology. Long, complex sentences increase the risk of ambiguity and misunderstanding. Thus, the advice is to write short sentences, not to avoid them. Options B-D are valid improvements; statement A contradicts the guidance and is therefore the correct 'EXCEPT'.

NEW QUESTION # 93

A requirement is verifiable if...

- A. it is self-contained, providing all the necessary information for its understanding, implementation, and verification.
- B. all stakeholders interpret it in the same way, leaving no room for multiple interpretations.
- C. it is possible to determine whether the implementation fulfills the requirement.
- D. it reflects the genuine and agreed-upon needs of the stakeholders.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 94

Complete the gap:

"_____ conflicts arise from differences in the fundamental principles of the stakeholders involved. They are more personal and tied to broad, long-term perspectives."

- A. Relationship
- B. Structural
- C. Interest
- D. Value

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

The conflict typology in CPRE distinguishes data, interest, value, relationship and structural conflicts. Value conflicts occur when stakeholders' underlying beliefs, ethics or world-views clash-for example, safety vs. profit or privacy vs. data exploitation. These conflicts are deeply rooted, personal and stable over time, so they are hard to resolve by negotiation alone. Relationship conflicts stem from personal animosities or communication problems; interest conflicts concern competing goals; structural conflicts result from power or resource imbalances. Thus, "value" correctly completes the statement.

NEW QUESTION # 95

To get maximum value from validation activities, which practices should be followed? (Select 2 answers.)

- A. Identify the most important view and perform validation only from it.
- B. Ensure identification and correction of defects are done by different workers.
- C. Ensure independence between those eliciting and those validating requirements.
- D. Choose a single ideal milestone to perform all validation activities.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

Good validation practice includes separating responsibilities: reviewers focus on detecting defects, while others propose and implement corrections, reducing bias and conflicts of interest-supporting A.

Independence between elicitation and validation roles increases objectivity and helps expose assumptions missed during elicitation, so C is also recommended. Validation should incorporate multiple views (business, technical, test, operations), not just one, making B incorrect. Validation is not a one-off event; it should be repeated at successive milestones as requirements evolve, so D conflicts with guidance. Therefore A and C are the correct practices.
