BCS Foundation Certificate in Business Analysis V4.0 Sample Questions (Q76-Q81):

NEW QUESTION # 76

Which of the following is a KEY principle of Business Analysis?

- A. Focus on requirements definition only.
- B. Integrate IT changes together with project requirements to improve efficiency.
- C. Present options not solutions.
- D. Understand the symptoms of the problem being defined.

Answer: C

Explanation:

One of the key principles of business analysis is to present stakeholders with options rather than prescribing a single solution. This approach ensures that stakeholders can make informed decisions based on their priorities and constraints.

Key Principles of Business Analysis:

Present Options Not Solutions: Business analysts should provide multiple viable options, allowing stakeholders to choose the best course of action.

Understand Symptoms: While understanding symptoms is important, it is part of problem analysis, not a key principle.

Focus on Requirements Definition Only: Business analysis encompasses more than just defining requirements; it includes understanding problems, analyzing options, and ensuring value delivery.

Integrate IT Changes: While integrating IT changes is valuable, it is not a universal principle of business analysis.

Evaluation of Each Option:

A . Present options not solutions:

This is a fundamental principle of business analysis, emphasizing stakeholder choice.

Conclusion: This is correct .

B . Understand the symptoms of the problem being defined:

Understanding symptoms is part of problem analysis but not a standalone principle.

Conclusion: This is not correct .

C . Focus on requirements definition only:

Business analysis involves more than just requirements definition.

Conclusion: This is not correct .

D . Integrate IT changes together with project requirements to improve efficiency:

While integration is valuable, it is not a universal principle of business analysis.
