Conducting elicitation by asking Questions and documenting responses from relevant stakeholders has the following strength:

- A. analytical thinking.
- B. encouraging participation.
- C. sharing of information.
- D. prioritization setting.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Conducting elicitation by asking questions and documenting responses from relevant stakeholders is a key technique in business analysis. This approach has the strength of encouraging participation, as it actively involves stakeholders in the process, ensuring that their concerns and inputs are captured. This participatory approach can lead to more accurate and comprehensive understanding of stakeholder needs and requirements.

NEW QUESTION # 47

NEW QUESTION # 48

For which part of an initiative is the business analyst (BA) responsible?

- A. Authorizing the project
- B. Accepting risk mitigation plans
- C. Approving solution execution plans
- D. Defining the solution approach

Answer: D

Explanation:

A Business Analyst (BA) is primarily responsible for bridging the gap between business needs and technological solutions. They play a pivotal role in defining the solution approach, which includes understanding and interpreting both the business and technical aspects of a project. This involves identifying, analyzing, and documenting business requirements, and ensuring that the proposed solutions meet these requirements. BAs are not typically responsible for authorizing projects, approving execution plans, or accepting risk mitigation plans, as these tasks are generally within the purview of project managers or other stakeholders.

References: The roles and responsibilities of a BA include requirement gathering and analysis, stakeholder management, business process modeling, solution assessment and validation, and requirement communication<sup>12</sup>. The BABOK Guide also emphasizes the BA's role in defining needs and recommending solutions that deliver value to stakeholders<sup>3456</sup>. These responsibilities align with the task of defining the solution approach, as it involves articulating needs, designing solutions, and ensuring alignment with business objectives<sup>7</sup>.

NEW QUESTION # 49

What does a requirement's source, priority, and complexity refer to?

- A. Designs
- B. Attributes
- C. Functions
- D. Types

Answer: B

Explanation:

The source, priority, and complexity of a requirement are considered its attributes. These attributes provide essential information about the requirement, such as where it originated, how critical it is to the project's success, and how difficult it will be to implement. By capturing these attributes, business analysts can better manage requirements, prioritize them effectively, and ensure that the most important requirements are addressed first while understanding the effort required for each.
