* One-time fee - Flat pricing method:

* A flat pricing method charges a fixed amount regardless of usage or other variables.

* This is appropriate for the initial one-time setup fee for customers.

Reference:

Microsoft Docs - Recurring billing setup

"Flat pricing methods are used for fixed fees such as one-time charges." Minimum charge - Standard pricing method:

Standard pricing method calculates pricing based on the standard sales price, which can be controlled via trade agreements for flexibility.

This supports minimum charges that may vary depending on trade agreements and product pricing setup.

Reference:

Microsoft Docs - Trade agreements and pricing

"Standard pricing method links to released product sales price and trade agreements for flexible price management." Why other pricing methods are not used here:

Tier and Flat tier pricing methods are typically used for usage-based billing or tiered usage charges, not for one-time fees or minimum charges. Since these lines specifically require one-time and minimum charge setups, these methods are not applicable.
