NEW QUESTION # 892

Which JSON paths are considered to be equivalent in Snowflake? (Select TWO).

- A. `src['CUSTOMER']['Email']`
- B. `src:customer:email`
- C. `SRC:Custom:Email`
- D. `src['customer']['EMAIL']`
- E. `SRC:customer:email`

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

* In Snowflake, JSON path equivalence occurs when different syntax representations refer to the same nested element in a JSON object.

* Correct Examples:

* A. src['customer']['EMAIL']: Explicit bracket notation is case-insensitive in Snowflake and works for nested JSON elements.

* D. src:customer.email: Dot notation is also case-insensitive and is equivalent to bracket notation in Snowflake.

Why Other Options Are Incorrect:

* B. src['CUSTOMER']['Email']: The case-sensitive mismatch causes this to be non-equivalent.

* C. SRC:Customer.Email: Case-sensitive mismatches with the key name.

* E. SRC:customer.email: Incorrect due to unnecessary uppercase in SRC.

NEW QUESTION # 893

A column named "Data" contains VARIANT data and stores values as follows:

```
  "Employee" : {
    id : 100, name : John,
    location : "New York"
  }
}

How will Snowflake extract the employee's name from the column data?

- A. DATA:employee.name
- B. Data:employee.name
- C. data:employee.name
- D. data:Employee.name

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Snowflake, to extract a specific value from a VARIANT column, you use the column name followed by a colon and then the key. The keys are case-sensitive. Therefore, to extract the employee's name from the "Data" column, the correct syntax is data:employee.name.

NEW QUESTION # 894

Which URL type allows users to access unstructured data without authenticating into Snowflake or passing an authorization token?

- A. File URL
- B. Signed URL
- C. Pre-signed URL
- D. Scoped URL

Answer: C

Pre-signed URLs in Snowflake allow users to access unstructured data without the need for authentication into Snowflake or passing an authorization token. These URLs are open and can be directly accessed or downloaded by any user or application, making them ideal for business intelligence applications or reporting tools that need to display unstructured file contents
