- C. To enable wireless networking
- D. To connect end-user devices to the network

NEW QUESTION # 105

Identify the stakeholders when gathering information for the network design and new IDF/MDF design. (Choose two.)

- A. Facility manager
- B. Help desk manager
- C. Chief Financial Officer
- D. Network Operations manager

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

When designing a network and considering new Intermediate Distribution Frame/Main Distribution Frame (IDF/MDF) deployments, it's essential to gather information from various stakeholders to ensure the design meets all operational and organizational requirements.

According to Aruba Campus Access learning resources, the Help Desk Manager and Network Operations Manager are crucial stakeholders in this process. The Help Desk Manager provides insights into common issues, user complaints, and service requests, which can influence network design decisions to improve user experience and operational efficiency. The Network Operations Manager, on the other hand, offers a technical perspective on network management, maintenance requirements, and operational challenges. Engaging with these stakeholders ensures that the network design is aligned with both user needs and technical operational standards, contributing to a more resilient, efficient, and user-friendly network infrastructure.

The current IT staff is used to working with legacy OS-S (ProCurve) equipment. They are worried that they cannot handle OS-CX switches due to the different command syntax. What are two ways to make the transition easier for them? (Choose two.)

- A. ASP
- B. CLI Reference Guide for OS-CX, OS-Switch, Comware and Cisco IOS
- C. CLI Bank
- D. create aliases

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

To ease the transition for IT staff accustomed to legacy Aruba OS-S (ProCurve) equipment when moving to Aruba OS-CX switches, two effective approaches are creating aliases (Option A) and using the CLI Reference Guide for Aruba OS-CX, Aruba OS-Switch, Comware, and Cisco IOS (Option B). Aliases allow the creation of custom command shortcuts or mappings in Aruba OS-CX, which can mimic or resemble the commands staff are familiar with from Aruba OS-S, making the command-line interface (CLI) more intuitive for them. The CLI Reference Guide is an invaluable resource that provides a comparative view of commands across different operating systems, including Aruba OS-CX and Aruba OS-S, helping staff understand the equivalent commands and functionalities in the new OS-CX environment. Both these tools can significantly reduce the learning curve and help the IT staff become proficient with Aruba OS-CX switches more quickly.
