NEW QUESTION # 149

A data analyst is performing a data merge within a spreadsheet using the tables below:

<https://www.bing.com/images/blob?bcid=S1XCF9p02M4GjpbGxHj0lrIaj9sw....4c>

The analyst is attempting to pull the addresses from Table 2 into Table 1 using the last names and is receiving an error message.

Which of the following steps can the analyst perform to fix the error?

- A. Use concatenate to combine the tables.
- B. Ensure the formula is pulling from right to left.
- C. Review the spelling and data type.
- D. Sort the data by the last name field.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The error in merging data from Table 2 into Table 1 using last names could be due to discrepancies in spelling or data type between the two tables. It is essential to ensure that the last names are spelled consistently and that the data types are compatible for a successful merge. Option D suggests reviewing these aspects, which can potentially resolve the error, ensuring that each last name in Table 1 accurately corresponds to the same last name in Table 2, allowing for a successful data pull of addresses.

NEW QUESTION # 150

Which of the following explains why standardization of data field names is important to master data management concepts?

- A. The quality of the data is consistent and improved.
- B. The data looks more appealing.
- C. The data is decompressed.
- D. The colors in data visualization are enhanced.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Master Data Management (MDM) involves creating a single, consistent, and accurate set of identifiers and extended attributes for the organization's critical data. Standardizing data field names plays a pivotal role in achieving this consistency.

* Consistent and Improved Data Quality: Standardized field names ensure that data from different sources can be integrated seamlessly, reducing redundancy and discrepancies. This uniformity enhances data quality by making it easier to maintain, interpret, and manage data across the organization.

* Data Appearance: While standardization contributes to data consistency, it doesn't inherently affect the visual appeal of the data.

* Visualization Colors: The colors used in data visualization are determined by visualization tools and are not influenced by the naming conventions of data fields.

* Data Compression: Standardizing field names does not relate to data compression or decompression processes.

Thus, standardizing data field names is essential for ensuring consistent and improved data quality within Master Data Management practices.

- A. Data protection.
- B. Data masking.

- C. Data encryption.

Which of the following is an example of a data-mining ETL tool?

- A. Stata
- B. Cognos

A data-mining ETL tool is a software application that performs extract, transform, and load (ETL) operations on data for data mining purposes. Data mining is the process of discovering patterns, trends, and insights from large and complex data sets. ETL tools help to prepare the data for analysis by extracting data from various sources, transforming data into a consistent and suitable format, and loading data into a data warehouse or other destination. SSIS (SQL Server Integration Services) is an example of a data-mining ETL tool that is part of Microsoft SQL Server. SSIS provides graphical tools and wizards for building and debugging ETL packages that can work with various data sources and destinations. Therefore, the correct answer is A.
