NEW QUESTION # 196

You are compiling a compliance report on vulnerability metadata for a specific set of images identified by Artifact Analysis. Metadata from images scanned more than 30 days ago are missing from the compliance report. You need to access the vulnerability metadata for these older images. What should you do?

- A. Create a Pub/Sub subscription to pull from Artifact Analysis topics.
- B. Push or pull the images from Artifact Registry.
- C. Check Artifact Analysis storage buckets in Cloud Storage.
- D. Check Cloud Trace logs for Artifact Analysis findings.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Artifact Analysis in Google Cloud automatically scans images in Artifact Registry and generates vulnerability metadata. However, to access updated vulnerability metadata for images scanned over 30 days ago, you need to re-trigger the scan. By pushing or pulling the images from Artifact Registry, you effectively re-trigger Artifact Analysis, which generates fresh vulnerability metadata. This ensures your compliance report has up-to-date information for those images. The other options do not re-trigger scanning, and vulnerability metadata is not stored in Cloud Storage or Cloud Trace logs.

NEW QUESTION # 197

- B. Deploy website on App Engine as three separate services.
- C. Deploy website on App Engine and use traffic splitting.
