Snowflake SnowPro Advanced: Data Analyst Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q42-Q47):

NEW QUESTION # 42

How do row access policies and Dynamic Data Masking impact the creation of dashboards in terms of data visibility and security?

- A. They improve data visibility for all users without restrictions.
- B. Both policies restrict data visibility for better security.
- C. Row access policies limit data visibility based on user privileges.
- D. Dynamic Data Masking doesn't affect data visibility in dashboards.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Row access policies restrict data visibility based on user privileges, ensuring better security in dashboard creation.

NEW QUESTION # 43

What considerations should be taken into account when choosing between a dimensional model and a flattened data set for BI requirements in Snowflake? (Select all that apply)

- A. Availability of only specific query types
- B. Data redundancy and normalization requirements
- C. Query complexity and performance expectations
- D. Flexibility and ease of maintenance

Answer: B,C,D

Explanation:

Considerations include data redundancy, normalization needs, query complexity, performance expectations, flexibility, and ease of maintenance when choosing the appropriate data structure for BI requirements.

NEW QUESTION # 44

You have a large dataset in Snowflake containing customer order information stored in a table named 'ORDERS' with columns 'ORDER_ID' (INT), 'CUSTOMER_ID' (INT), 'ORDER_DATE' (DATE), 'TOTAL_AMOUNT' (FLOAT), and 'DISCOUNT_APPLIED' (BOOLEAN). You need to use Snowsight dashboards to analyze customer spending behavior and identify potential outliers. Which of the following visualizations, combined with appropriate SQL queries, would be MOST effective in identifying customers with unusually high or low order values? (Select TWO)

- A. Option A
- B. Option E
- C. Option D
- D. Option C
- E. Option B

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Options A and C are the most effective. A Box Plot (A) is ideal for identifying outliers in a distribution. By visualizing the distribution of total order amounts per customer, you can easily spot customers with unusually high or low spending. A Scatter Plot (C) directly shows the relationship between customer ID and total spending, making it easy to visually identify outliers based on their position relative to other data points. Option B is more suitable for trend analysis over time, and options D and E are useful but don't directly highlight individual customer outliers in terms of order value.

NEW QUESTION # 45

Consider a scenario where you are building a dashboard to monitor the performance of a marketing campaign. The data includes daily ad spend, website conversions, and cost per acquisition (CPA). The stakeholders need to quickly assess whether the campaign is meeting its target CPA. What visualization type would be MOST appropriate to display the current CPA compared to the target CPA, providing a clear and concise view of performance?

- A. A Pie chart showing CPA percentage against target CPA percentage.
- B. A scatter plot showing the relationship between ad spend and CPA.
- C. A gauge chart displaying the current CPA and the target CPA, with color-coded zones indicating performance levels.
- D. A bar chart comparing the average CPA to the target CPA.
- E. A line chart showing the trend of CPA over time.

Answer: C

Explanation:

A gauge chart is specifically designed to display a single value (the current CPA) in relation to a target value (the target CPA). The color-coded zones provide an immediate indication of whether the campaign is performing well, needs improvement, or is failing. Line charts show trends, bar charts compare averages, and scatter plots show relationships. Pie chart showing CPA percentage against target CPA percentage do not accurately show CPA against target CPA, for better visualization gauge charts would be the preferred option

NEW QUESTION # 46

You have a table 'ORDERS' that stores customer order information. Due to a faulty ETL process, incorrect discount values were applied to some orders yesterday. You need to correct these discount values while ensuring that you can revert to the original data if necessary. Select all the valid actions to mitigate this situation using Snowflake's Time Travel and Cloning features.

- A. Create a clone of the 'ORDERS' table BEFORE applying the corrections, allowing you to revert to the original data by cloning the backup back if needed.
- B. Create a backup table with the structure and all the records by using 'create table orders_backup as select from orders'.
- C. Update the discount values directly in the 'ORDERS' table after verifying the incorrect records, relying solely on Snowflake's data retention for recovery.
- D. Use Time Travel to query the 'ORDERS' table as it existed BEFORE the faulty ETL process, then use this data to correct the discount values in a separate update statement.
- E. Create a temporary table to store the original incorrect discount values before applying the corrections, then updating the 'ORDERS' table.

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Options A and E are the most reliable and efficient. Cloning the table (A) before the correction provides a complete, point-in-time backup that can be easily restored. Using Time Travel (E) allows you to query the historical data to identify the correct values and apply targeted updates. B is risky without a backup, as unforeseen issues might prevent successful recovery within the retention period. While C is technically feasible, it is less robust and adds complexity compared to a full clone or Time Travel. D is same as C but with more data, but less robust and adds complexity compared to a full clone or Time Travel. Creating the temp table doesn't give you the benefit of time travel, so doesn't make sense.
