Cisco Designing and Implementing Enterprise Network Assurance Sample Questions (Q40-Q45):

NEW QUESTION # 40

What is the first step in establishing a metric baseline for network performance analysis?

- A. Collect historical data
- B. Define key performance indicators (KPIs)
- C. Establish alert thresholds
- D. Analyze network traffic patterns

Answer: B

Explanation:

Defining key performance indicators (KPIs) is the initial step in setting a metric baseline for network performance analysis.

NEW QUESTION # 41

Which deliverable is commonly recommended for IT operations teams to monitor network performance?

- A. Reports
- B. Alerts
- C. Performance metrics
- D. Dashboards

Answer: D

Explanation:

Dashboards are commonly recommended for IT operations teams to monitor network performance as they provide real-time visualizations of key performance indicators (KPIs), network status, and operational metrics, enabling proactive monitoring and rapid response to performance issues.

Answer Area

Severity

ALERT CONDITIONS
 conditions are met by at least visited site out of minimum total visited sites per agent of time in a row:

Explanation:

Slow or failed website loading is best detected by monitoring Page Load Time (to capture long browser load delays) and Error Count (to detect HTTP/element load errors). CPU utilization is unrelated to user website-access issues, so it is not used.

NEW QUESTION # 44

An engineer is trying to configure a Page Load test and is trying to assign the east1-agent-1 to run it, but cannot see that agent listed. What is the reason that the designated agent does not appear?

- A. The agent is not running
- B. The agent is disabled
- C. The agent is still registering
- D. The agent does not support Page load tests

Answer: D

Explanation:

In the framework of Designing and Implementing Enterprise Network Assurance (300-445 ENNA), selecting the appropriate agent for specific test types is a critical configuration step. The ThousandEyes platform utilizes different agent binaries and capabilities depending on the underlying hardware and software environment. Specifically, Page Load tests and Transaction tests require the agent to have a browser engine (Chromium) installed and functional to render web content and measure DOM-related metrics. According to the ENNA implementation guidelines, not all Enterprise Agents support these browser-based tests. The exhibit displays a "New Test" configuration screen where the engineer is searching for "east1-agent-1". While other agents like "west-2-ag-1" are visible, the designated agent is missing because it does not support Page load tests (Option D). This common occurrence happens when an Enterprise Agent is deployed on resource-constrained hardware—such as certain Cisco Catalyst 9000 switches or Cisco ISR 4000 series routers—where the Chromium browser package is either not supported or has not been enabled due to memory and CPU limitations.

When an agent lacks the required capabilities for a specific test layer (e.g., Web layer tests), it is automatically filtered out from the selection list in the ThousandEyes portal to prevent invalid test configurations. To identify compatible agents, an engineer can look for the "Browser" or "Dual Chromium" labels in the agent settings. If the "east1-agent-1" were merely offline (Option A), disabled (Option B), or still registering (Option C), it would typically still appear in the list but with a status indicator showing its unavailability, rather than being entirely hidden from the test assignment menu. Therefore, the absence of the agent in a web-layer test configuration explicitly indicates a lack of functional support for the required browser-based metrics.
