CompTIA A+ Certification Exam: Core 1 Sample Questions (Q458-Q463):

NEW QUESTION # 458

A user is trying to print diagrams on 11in × 17in (28cm × 43cm) paper. The correct paper is in the printer, but the printer prompts the user to insert paper. A technician assisting the user successfully prints the diagram to a different printer that is the same model. Which of the following is the most likely cause of this issue on the user's printer?

- A. Incorrect driver
- B. Connectivity issues
- C. Insufficient permissions
- D. Tray settings

Answer: D

Explanation:

The most likely cause of this issue is incorrect tray settings on the user's printer. According to CompTIA Core 1 (220-1201) printer configuration and troubleshooting concepts, printers rely on tray configuration settings to determine the paper size and paper type loaded in each tray. If the tray is not configured for 11 ×

17 (Tabloid/Ledger) paper, the printer will assume the required paper is unavailable—even if the paper is physically present.

When a print job specifies a paper size that does not match the tray's configured settings, the printer commonly displays a message prompting the user to insert the correct paper. The fact that the same document prints successfully on another printer of the same model confirms that the driver, permissions, and connectivity are functioning correctly, further isolating the issue to the local printer's tray configuration.

An incorrect driver would cause consistent problems across printers, not just one. Connectivity issues would prevent communication with the printer entirely, and insufficient permissions would generate access or authorization errors rather than a paper prompt. CompTIA emphasizes verifying tray assignments and paper size configuration as a primary troubleshooting step when printers incorrectly request paper that is already loaded.

NEW QUESTION # 459

A user tries to connect a monitor to a laptop to have an additional screen for work, but both screens show the same content. Which of the following should the user do to resolve the issue?

- A. Purchase a docking station to connect both the laptop and the monitor.
- B. Go to the Display settings and configure the external monitor as extended.
- C. Configure the Windows tiling feature to display multiple windows.
- D. Use the Add New Hardware assistant to add the monitor and set up the required settings.

Answer: B

Explanation:

By default, Windows often mirrors (duplicates) the laptop display. In Display settings, you can change the multiple-display option from "Duplicate" to "Extend", enabling the second monitor to act as additional workspace rather than showing the same content.

NEW QUESTION # 460

A technician has built a new computer. On the initial startup, the computer passes POST but will not turn on the operating system. Which of the following components has failed?

- A. HDD
- B. Power supply
- C. CPU
- D. Audio card

Answer: A

Explanation:

When a newly built computer successfully passes POST, it indicates that the CPU, RAM, motherboard, video output, and other essential components are functioning at a hardware level. POST will typically fail or display error codes if there are problems with the CPU, RAM, GPU, or power delivery. Therefore, the fact that POST succeeds allows us to eliminate those components from suspicion.

The issue arises after POST, when the system attempts to load an operating system. For the OS to load, the BIOS/UEFI must detect a working storage device—such as an HDD, SSD, or NVMe drive—containing a bootable OS. If the computer cannot locate or read the drive, the system will halt at a boot error, such as "No boot device found," "Insert boot media," or similar messages. This is consistent with a failed or improperly connected HDD.

A failed HDD prevents access to boot files, even though the rest of the system hardware functions normally. Audio cards are irrelevant to booting. A failed CPU would cause a POST failure, not an OS loading issue. A faulty power supply would affect system stability during POST, not specifically OS boot failure unless the system is not powering at all.

Thus, the failed component is the HDD.

NEW QUESTION # 461

Which of the following cable types is the most suitable for delivering 10Gb speeds for distances over 328ft (100m) but under 1,312ft (400m)?

- A. Cat 6a
- B. Cat 6
- C. Multimode fiber
- D. Single-mode fiber

Answer: C

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Step-by-Step

When delivering 10Gbps speeds over long distances, fiber optic cables are the best choice. Here's the breakdown:

A . Multimode Fiber (Correct Answer):

Multimode fiber is designed for relatively short to medium distances (up to 1,312 feet or 400 meters) while supporting high-speed data transfer (10Gbps and above).

It uses LED light sources and is cost-effective for environments like data centers or within buildings.

For the specified distance of over 328ft but under 1,312ft, multimode fiber is the most suitable option.

Incorrect Options:

B . Single-mode Fiber: While single-mode fiber supports much greater distances (up to several miles or kilometers) and higher speeds, it is more expensive and unnecessary for the specified range. Single-mode fiber is generally used for long-haul networking or telecommunications.

C . Cat 6a: Cat 6a is capable of 10Gbps speeds but only up to 328ft (100 meters). It cannot reliably handle the specified distance of over 328ft.

D . Cat 6: Cat 6 is also limited to 10Gbps speeds at distances up to 328ft (100 meters). Beyond this range, it is unsuitable.

Key Takeaway:

For delivering 10Gbps speeds over distances longer than 328ft (100m) but under 1,312ft (400m), Multimode Fiber is the best choice due to its ability to support high-speed data over medium distances at a reasonable cost.

NEW QUESTION # 462

Which of the following can carry data and electricity to network devices? (Select two).

- A. PoE
- B. Injector
- C. Access point
- D. Cable modem
- E. Unmanaged switch
- F. Router

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

PoE (Power over Ethernet) allows both data and electrical power to be delivered over the same Ethernet cable. A PoE injector adds power to Ethernet cables for devices that need it.

From CompTIA A+ 220-1101 Official Study Guide, Objective 2.2 - Networking hardware:

"Power over Ethernet (PoE) technology and PoE injectors enable both power and data transmission to compatible network devices like access points and IP cameras." Verified Source:
