- A. Hold regular meetings focusing on problem solutions
- B. Promote a culture of learning and development
- C. Incorporate the organization's vision into the team culture

NEW QUESTION # 65

A service desk team acts as a single point of contact for its users. Service desk team members are the first-line support; however, if they are unable to resolve the incidents, they are escalated to second-line support. This tiered support structure has resulted in large queues of unresolved tickets. Which concept or approach would help the organization resolve this situation?

- A. Swarming
- B. Outsourcing
- C. Results-based measurement
- D. Advanced analytics

Answer: A

Explanation:

The concept of swarming would help resolve this situation (D). The ITIL 4 Specialist: Create, Deliver and Support documentation (Section 4.3.5) defines swarming as: "A collaborative approach where multiple team members, including first- and second-line support, work together on an incident simultaneously to resolve it quickly, reducing queue buildup." This contrasts with the tiered structure's escalation delays. Option A focuses on metrics; option B aids analysis; and option C shifts work externally, none addressing queue reduction directly. The guide notes: "Swarming enhances resolution times by leveraging collective expertise." Reference: ITIL 4 Specialist: Create, Deliver and Support, Section 4.3.5 - Swarming in Incident Management.

NEW QUESTION # 67

A service desk uses triage to ensure they work on the most urgent tasks first. This sometimes causes user satisfaction issues, because low priority requests can wait a long time before anyone starts to work on them. What is the BEST way to manage this issue?

- A. Use first-in first-out prioritization instead of triage, to ensure that tasks are worked on in the order that they are requested
- B. Train users so that they know their requests might be delayed if there are many higher priority tasks in the backlog
- C. Increase the priority of requests that have been waiting a long time and are at risk of breaching agreed service levels
- D. Recruit more service desk staff so that they are able to work on low priority requests even when there are many higher priority tasks

Answer: C
