NCLEX National Council Licensure Examination(NCLEX-RN) Sample Questions (Q383-Q388):

NEW QUESTION # 383

A female client has just died. Her family is requesting that all nursing staff leave the room. The family's religious leader has arrived and is ready to conduct a ceremony for the deceased in the room, requesting that only family members be present. The nurse assigned to the client should perform the appropriate nursing action, which might include:

- A. Tell the family that they may conduct their ceremony in the client's room; however, the nurse must attend.
- B. Refuse to leave the room because the client's body is entrusted in the nurse's care until it can be brought to the morgue.
- C. Respect the client's family's wishes.
- D. Inform the family that it is the hospital's policy not to conduct religious ceremonies in client rooms.

Answer: C

Explanation:

(A) It is rare that a hospital has a specific policy addressing this particular issue. If the statement is true, the nurse should show evidence of the policy to the family and suggest alternatives, such as the hospital chapel. (B) Refusal to leave the room demonstrates a lack of understanding related to the family's need to grieve in their own manner. (C) The nurse should leave the room and allow the family privacy in their grief. (D) The family's wish to conduct a religious ceremony in the client's room is part of the grief process. The request is based on specific cultural and religious differences dictating social customs.

NEW QUESTION # 384

The nurse is caring for a client who has diabetes insipidus. The nurse would describe this client's urine output pattern as:

- A. Polyuria
- B. Oliguria
- C. Dysuria
- D. Anuria

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

Explanation

(A)Anuria is defined as absence of urine output, which is not indicative of the urinary pattern of diabetes insipidus. (B)Oliguria is defined as <500 mL of urine per day, which is not a urinary output pattern associated with diabetes insipidus. (C)Dysuria is defined as difficult urination. Clients with diabetes insipidus do not have dysuria as a symptom of their disease. (D) Polyuria is a primary symptom of diabetes insipidus. These clients have decreased or absent vasopressin secretion, which causes water loss in the urine and sodium increases.

NEW QUESTION # 385

In counseling a client, the nurse emphasizes the danger signals during pregnancy. On the next visit, the client identifies which of the following as a danger signal that should be reported immediately?

- A. Constipation with hemorrhoids
- B. Backache
- C. Visual changes
- D. Leaking of clear yellow fluid from breasts

Answer: C

Explanation:

(A) Backache is a common complaint during pregnancy. Proper body mechanics, pelvic rock, back rubs, and other comfort measures should relieve the discomfort. In the presence of uterine contractions, the backache would radiate to the lower abdomen. (B) Colostrum is normal and can be present anytime in the second half of pregnancy. (C) Constipation and hemorrhoids are common and do need attention, but they do not constitute a dangerous situation. (D) Visual changes are possibly related to PIH. The client should be assessed immediately to rule out or prevent worsening of PIH.

NEW QUESTION # 386

On the third postpartum day, a client complains of extremely tender breasts. On palpation, the nurse notes a very firm, shiny appearance to the breasts and some milk leakage. She is bottle feeding. The nurse should initially recommend to her to:

- A. Allow the infant to breast-feed at the next feeding time to empty the breasts
- B. Take 2 ibuprofen (Motrin) tablets by mouth now because the baby will be returning for feeding in 20 minutes
- C. Apply ice packs to the breasts and wear a supportive, well-fitting bra
- D. Take a warm shower and express milk from both breasts until empty

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

(A) Judicious use of analgesics is appropriate with breast engorgement; however, mechanical suppression would be the initial recommendation. (B) Breast-feeding every 1 1/2-3 hours will reduce and/or prevent breast engorgement. Breast-feeding will promote milk production, which will compound the distention and stasis of the venous circulation of engorgement in a bottlefeeding mother. (C) Ice packs reduce milk flow while the snug, supportive bra provides mechanical suppression and decreases pulling on Cooper's ligament. In addition, breast binders or ace bandages may be used for some women. (D) Warmth promotes milk production and may stimulate the let-down reflex. These measures would contribute to the venous congestion of engorgement.

NEW QUESTION # 387

On an assessment of a client's mouth, the nurse notices white patches on the buccal mucosa. The nurse tries to obtain a sample for a culture, but the lesion cannot be rubbed off. The nurse would suspect that this lesion is:

- A. Leukoplakia
- B. Stomatitis
- C. Xerostomia
- D. Candidiasis

Answer: A

Explanation:

(A) Xerostomia is dry mouth. (B) Candidiasis can be rubbed off, but it will bleed. (C) Leukoplakia cannot be rubbed off. (D) Stomatitis is caused by candidiasis and gram-negative bacteria.
