Workday ProTime Tracking Exam Sample Questions (Q53-Q58):

NEW QUESTION # 53

Refer to the following scenario to answer the question below.

You are reviewing time for a worker in California. The worker has reported hours for the seventh consecutive day and the hours are calculating as configured. This week the worker reported 11 hours on the seventh consecutive day worked. This worker is eligible for double-time on all hours worked over 8 on the seventh consecutive day; however, all 11 hours are tagged as seventh consecutive day hours.

You have created and assigned the Seventh Consecutive Day Double Time time calculation to a time calculation group.

Where on the Seventh Consecutive Day Double Time calculation do you find the hours that count toward seventh consecutive day double time?

- A. Remove Tags field
- B. Add Tags field
- C. Time Calculation Group grid
- D. Include Calculation Tags grid

Answer: D

Explanation:

The correct answer is A. Include Calculation Tags grid .

In Workday Time Tracking, the Include Calculation Tags section determines which hours are evaluated by a specific time calculation. For a rule such as Seventh Consecutive Day Double Time , Workday looks at the hours that already carry certain calculation tags and uses those tagged hours to determine whether the threshold for double time has been reached. In other words, the hours that count toward the seventh consecutive day double-time rule are identified in the Include Calculation Tags grid .

This is different from the Add Tags field, which defines the result of the calculation by specifying the tag that will be added after the criteria are met. The Remove Tags field controls which tags should be removed once the calculation applies. The Time Calculation Group grid is not where the hours are identified; it simply groups related calculations for worker eligibility and execution.

In this scenario, if all 11 hours remain tagged as seventh consecutive day hours instead of splitting after 8 hours, reviewing the Include Calculation Tags grid is essential because it shows exactly which tagged hours Workday is counting toward the threshold.

That is the configuration area that determines the hours considered for the seventh consecutive day double-time calculation.

Therefore, the correct answer is A .

NEW QUESTION # 54

To prevent a worker from entering time on a holiday, which two business objects can you reference to create a critical validation to remind workers of this restriction?

- A. Worker and Time Block
- B. Time Day and Time Shift
- C. Time Day and Time Block
- D. Worker and Time Day

Answer: C

Refer to the following scenario to answer the question below.

You are reviewing time for a worker. The worker has reported hours for the seventh consecutive day and the hours are calculating as configured. This week, the worker reported 11 hours on the seventh consecutive day worked. This worker is eligible for double-time on all hours worked over 8 hours on the seventh consecutive day; however, all 11 hours are tagged as seventh consecutive day hours.

To solve this issue, you determine that the worker should be made eligible for a specific time tracking component.

What time tracking component should this worker be eligible for?

- A. Time Code Group
- B. Time Calculation Group
- C. Time Entry Template
- D. Time Calculation Tag

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct answer is C. Time Calculation Group .

In Workday Time Tracking, a Time Calculation Group is the component that bundles together the time calculations that apply to a specific worker population. If a worker should receive special overtime or double-time logic-such as double time for hours over 8 on the seventh consecutive day -the worker must be eligible for the appropriate Time Calculation Group that contains those rules. In this scenario, the worker's time is being tagged as seventh consecutive day hours, but the expected split into double time after 8 hours is not occurring. That strongly suggests the worker is not currently eligible for the calculation group that includes the seventh consecutive day double-time calculation . Making the worker eligible for the correct calculation group ensures Workday runs the additional rule needed to reclassify hours over the threshold.

The other options are not correct for this purpose. A Time Entry Template controls how time is entered, not how overtime logic is calculated. A Time Calculation Tag is a result or identifier used by calculations, not an eligibility-based worker component. A Time Code Group organizes time entry codes, but it does not determine whether complex overtime calculations are applied.

Therefore, the worker should be made eligible for the appropriate Time Calculation Group

NEW QUESTION # 56

What report do you run to ensure that a period schedule is assigned to a worker?

- A. View Period Schedule
- B. View Worker's Time Eligibility
- C. Audit - Workers with Multiple Time Period Schedules
- D. Time Entry Period Schedule Review

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct answer is D. View Worker's Time Eligibility .

In Workday Time Tracking, when you want to confirm whether a specific worker has been assigned a period schedule , the most direct report is View Worker's Time Eligibility . This report is used to review which Time Tracking components a worker is currently eligible for and receiving, including items such as time entry templates, approval templates, and period schedules . Since the question is focused on verifying assignment to a worker , this worker-level eligibility view is the most appropriate choice.

The other options do not fit the requirement as well. Audit - Workers with Multiple Time Period Schedules is an exception report used to identify workers who have more than one schedule, not to simply confirm that a worker has one assigned. View Period Schedule lets you inspect the schedule definition itself, but it is not the best worker-specific confirmation tool. Time Entry Period Schedule Review may sound related, but it is not the standard report used to validate a worker's eligibility-based assignment in the same direct way.

So, if your goal is to ensure that a particular worker is assigned the correct period schedule, the correct report is View Worker's Time Eligibility .

NEW QUESTION # 57

On what Time Tracking component can you configure a worktag as required?

- A. Time entry code
- B. Time Calculation tag
- C. Time Entry template
- D. Worktag

Answer: C

Explanation:

The correct answer is D. Time Entry template .

In Workday Time Tracking, the Time Entry template controls the structure of the time entry experience for a group of workers. This includes what fields appear during time entry, how time is entered, and whether certain information must be provided before a worker can submit time. When a business wants to make a worktag required , that requirement is configured through the Time Entry template , because the template governs the entry rules and data capture requirements presented to the worker.

This is the correct design point because worktags such as cost center, project, grant, or other organizational tracking values are often needed at the point of entry for labor costing, reporting, or downstream payroll and financial processing. By making the worktag required in the template, Workday enforces that workers supply that value whenever they enter qualifying time.

The other options are not the primary place for this setup. A Worktag is the classification object itself, not the entry-rule configuration component. A Time entry code identifies the type of time being reported, such as regular or training time, but it does not generally control whether a worktag is universally required in the entry interface. A Time Calculation tag is used for calculation logic, not for entry field requirements.

So the correct answer is D. Time Entry template .
