Hence, it helps you to achieve a high grade on the very first attempt.

CWNP Certified Wireless Design Professional Sample Questions (Q10-Q15):

NEW QUESTION # 10

What power management feature introduced in 802.11ax, but not available in 802.11ac or 802.11n, is designed to improve battery life for WLAN devices?

- A. TWT
- B. Legacy Power Save
- C. WMM-Power Save
- D. OFDMA

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 11

You are validating client association capabilities to an 802.1X/EAP secure SSID. The RADIUS server's IP address is 10.100.50.25, and the default RADIUS authentication port is being used. None of the clients can associate with the SSID. After verifying that both the server and the RADIUS service are operational, you find that the authenticator (such as the AP or controller) is not communicating properly with the RADIUS server. What is your next troubleshooting step?

- A. Restart the RADIUS service to empty the shared secret cache
- B. Verify that the shared secret between the authenticator and the RADIUS server is correct
- C. Reboot the clients to empty the shared secret cache
- D. Reboot the server to empty the shared secret cache

Answer: B

Explanation:

In 802.1X/EAP authentication, the shared secret between the authenticator and the RADIUS server must match. If clients cannot associate and the RADIUS server is operational, the next step is to verify that the shared secret configured on both the authenticator and the RADIUS server is identical. A mismatch will prevent successful authentication.
