最新的 National Certified Counselor NCE-ABE 免費考試真題 (Q128-Q133):

問題 #128

What skill is the counselor using in the following statement?

"In the midst of trying to prepare for the baby, you're tired of your colleagues' behaviors. You've had to set boundaries about touching your bump, explain maternity leave to your boss, and field awkward questions about your body. It sounds like you're trying to go about your work and you don't feel they're meeting you halfway. Am I understanding that correctly?"

- A. Additive empathy
- B. Paraphrase
- C. Reflection of meaning
- D. Summarization

答案：D

解題說明：

In the Counseling and Helping Relationships core area, CACREP identifies basic counseling skills such as paraphrasing, reflecting feeling, summarizing, and using empathy.

* Summarization pulls together several client statements over time, capturing multiple pieces of content and associated feelings, and then checking for accuracy.

* In the statement given, the counselor:

* Integrates several experiences (setting boundaries, explaining maternity leave, fielding questions).

* Reflects the emotional tone (tired of colleagues' behaviors, not feeling they're meeting her halfway).

* Ends with a checking-for-accuracy question ("Am I understanding that correctly?").

This is characteristic of summarization, not just a brief paraphrase of one point.

Additive empathy would involve going beyond what has been stated and offering a deeper interpretation not yet voiced by the client. Reflection of meaning focuses more on deeper values and life meaning. Paraphrasing is shorter and usually focuses on just one main idea.

Because the counselor is organizing and restating multiple themes and feelings in a concise way, the best skill label in line with NCE content is C. Summarization.

問題 #129

Which of the following is the experimentally validated treatment modality for individuals diagnosed with substance use disorder?

- A. Solution-focused brief therapy
- B. Narrative therapy
- C. Eye movement desensitization and reprocessing
- D. Motivational interviewing

解題說明：

In the Counseling Skills and Interventions work behavior area, counselors are expected to select interventions that are supported by empirical evidence for the client's specific concerns, including substance use disorders.

Motivational interviewing (MI) (Option A) is a widely researched, empirically supported treatment modality for individuals with substance use disorders. It is a client-centered, directive approach designed to:

- * Enhance intrinsic motivation for change,
- * Resolve ambivalence,
- * Support clients in moving through stages of change regarding substance use.

Core MI skills often summarized as OARS (open questions, affirmations, reflections, summaries) are used to elicit and strengthen "change talk" and reduce resistance. Research has consistently shown MI's effectiveness in reducing substance use and increasing treatment engagement across various populations and settings.

Why the other options are less appropriate here:

- * B. Narrative therapy - While potentially helpful for meaning-making and identity reconstruction, it is not the primary empirically validated front-line modality for substance use disorders.
- * C. Solution-focused brief therapy - Has some supportive evidence for various problems and can be useful in certain substance-related contexts, but MI has a stronger and more direct evidence base specifically for substance use disorders.
- * D. Eye movement desensitization and reprocessing (EMDR) - Primarily validated for trauma-related disorders, particularly PTSD, rather than as a core, primary treatment for substance use disorders.

NBCC-aligned counselor work behaviors emphasize that practitioners should match interventions to the problem using approaches with strong empirical support, making motivational interviewing the best choice among the options for treating substance use disorders.

問題 #130

Which of the following does not breach ethical counseling practice standards?

- A. Using counseling techniques for which the counselor has no previous training
- B. Charging fees that are much higher than those of other service providers in the area
- C. Disclosing counseling notes and records of sessions without the client's permission
- D. Imposing the counselor's personal values on the client

答案： B

解題說明：

This question falls under Professional Counseling Orientation and Ethical Practice, especially ethical standards, professional responsibility, and client rights.

* Option A - Using techniques without prior training Ethical standards require counselors to practice within the boundaries of their competence, which is based on education, training, supervised experience, and appropriate professional experience. Using counseling techniques for which the counselor has no prior training or competence violates these standards and may place clients at risk.

This breaches ethical practice.

* Option B - Imposing personal values Counselors are expected to avoid imposing their own values, attitudes, beliefs, or behaviors on clients, especially when such imposition may interfere with the counseling process or clients' autonomy. Ethically, counselors must respect the dignity and autonomy of clients and support their ability to make their own decisions. Imposing the counselor's personal values is clearly unethical.

* Option C - Charging higher fees than others in the area Ethical codes state that counselors must establish fees that are consistent with accepted professional practices, explain fees and billing to clients in advance, and avoid exploitation of clients. However, it is not an ethical requirement that a counselor's fees match or be similar to other providers' fees in the area. A counselor may charge higher fees if:

* The fees are clearly disclosed to the client beforehand,

* The client agrees voluntarily, and

* The fee structure is not exploitative or fraudulent. Therefore, simply charging higher fees than others does not, by itself, constitute an ethical violation, making C the correct answer.

* Option D - Disclosing notes and records without permission Ethical standards emphasize confidentiality as a core duty. Counselors must not disclose client information, counseling notes, or records without the client's informed consent, except under specific legal or ethical exceptions (e.g., risk of harm, court order, etc.). Disclosing records without permission generally breaches confidentiality and ethical practice.

Because A, B, and D all represent clear ethical violations, while C describes something that is not inherently unethical when done transparently and non-exploitatively, the only option that does not breach ethical counseling practice standards is C.

問題 #131

After the counselor has identified the client's primary issue or problem in the intake interview, which of the following is the most appropriate next step?

- A. Set the number of treatment sessions.
- B. Complete the informed disclosure form.
- C. Set counseling goals collaboratively with the client.
- D. Implement the first step in the treatment.

答案： C

解題說明：

The Counseling and Helping Relationships core area outlines the counseling process, including assessment, goal setting, and treatment planning. After the counselor has clarified the primary issue or problem, the next appropriate step is to:

* Work collaboratively with the client to develop clear, mutually agreed-upon counseling goals.

Option C reflects this standard. Goal setting is the bridge between assessment and intervention. It ensures that any treatment plan or technique used is purposeful, client-centered, and aligned with the client's priorities.

* A (implement treatment) is premature without collaboratively established goals.

* B (informed disclosure) should occur at the beginning of the counseling relationship, not after the problem is identified.

* D (set number of sessions) may be discussed later, often in the context of goals, agency policy, or client constraints, but it is not the primary next step immediately after identifying the problem.

Therefore, C is the most appropriate next step in the intake process.

問題 #132

Which theorist studied the development of moral values in females, allowing specialists to more thoroughly examine gender differences?

- A. Carol Gilligan
- B. Anne Roe
- C. Virginia Satir
- D. Karen Horney

答案： A

解題說明：

Counselors must understand major theories of human development as part of their Areas of Clinical Focus.

Carol Gilligan (A) is known for her work on moral development in females, challenging Kohlberg's male-centered model. She argued that women's moral reasoning often emphasizes care, relationships, and responsibility, and that this pattern was not adequately captured in earlier theories that relied heavily on male samples.

Her research opened the door for a more nuanced understanding of gender differences in moral reasoning, which is important for

The other theorists focus on different areas:

* Anne Roe (C) is known for a theory of career development related to early child-parent relationships.

Gilligan's work supports counselors in recognizing diverse developmental pathways and avoiding gender- biased assumptions when understanding clients' moral judgments and values.
