Microsoft GitHub Advanced Security Sample Questions (Q71-Q76):

NEW QUESTION # 71

Which details do you have to provide to create a custom pattern for secret scanning? (Each answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)

- A. The name of the pattern

- B. Additional match requirements for the secret format
- C. The secret format
- D. A list of repositories to scan

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

When defining a custom pattern for secret scanning, two key fields are required:

Name of the pattern: A unique label to identify the pattern

Secret format: A regular expression that defines what the secret looks like (e.g., token format) You can optionally specify additional match requirements (like required context keywords), but they're not mandatory. Listing repositories is also not part of the required fields during pattern creation.

NEW QUESTION # 72

Which of the following options are code scanning application programming interface (API) endpoints? (Each answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)

- A. Delete all open code scanning alerts
- B. Modify the severity of an open code scanning alert
- C. List all open code scanning alerts for the default branch
- D. Get a single code scanning alert

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

The GitHub Code Scanning API includes endpoints that allow you to:

List alerts for a repository (filtered by branch, state, or tool) - useful for monitoring security over time.

Get a single alert by its ID to inspect its metadata, status, and locations in the code.

However, GitHub does not support modifying the severity of alerts via API - severity is defined by the scanning tool (e.g., CodeQL). Likewise, alerts cannot be deleted via the API; they are resolved by fixing the code or dismissing them manually.

NEW QUESTION # 73

What is the first step you should take to fix an alert in secret scanning?

- A. Remove the secret in a commit to the main branch.
- B. Archive the repository.
- C. Revoke the alert if the secret is still valid.
- D. Update your dependencies.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The first step when you receive a secret scanning alert is to revoke the secret if it is still valid. This ensures the secret can no longer be used maliciously. Only after revoking it should you proceed to remove it from the code history and apply other mitigation steps. Simply deleting the secret from the code does not remove the risk if it hasn't been revoked - especially since it may already be exposed in commit history.

NEW QUESTION # 74

Which of the following options would close a Dependabot alert?

- A. Leaving the repository in its current state
- B. Creating a pull request to resolve the vulnerability that will be approved and merged
- C. Viewing the dependency graph
- D. Viewing the Dependabot alert on the Dependabot alerts tab of your repository

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Dependabot alert is only marked as resolved when the related vulnerability is no longer present in your code - specifically after you merge a pull request that updates the vulnerable dependency. Simply viewing alerts or graphs does not affect their status. Ignoring the alert by leaving the repo unchanged keeps the vulnerability active and unresolved.

NEW QUESTION # 75

Which patterns are secret scanning validity checks available to?

- A. Partner patterns
- B. Push protection patterns
- C. Custom patterns
- D. High entropy strings

Answer: A

Explanation:

Validity checks - where GitHub verifies if a secret is still active - are available for partner patterns only. These are secrets issued by GitHub's trusted partners (like AWS, Slack, etc.) and have APIs for GitHub to validate token activity status. Custom patterns and high entropy patterns do not support automated validity checks.
