Adobe Workfront Project Manager Certified Professional AD0-E911 Prüfungsfragen mit Lösungen (Q47-Q52):

47. Frage

Which Workfront collection of users allows a task or issue to be assigned to multiple people?

- A. Team
- B. Group
- C. Project Team

Antwort: A

Begründung:

Adobe Workfront uses Teams as a work-assignment structure for tasks and issues. A task or issue can be assigned to users, job roles, or teams, and Workfront documentation states that assignments can include more than one resource at a time. For issues, Adobe's documentation specifically says that the assignment field can include users, job roles, or teams, and that multiple resources can be assigned at the same time. For tasks, Adobe similarly explains that tasks can be assigned to users, job roles, or teams, including multiple resources. This makes Team the best answer because it is the Workfront collection designed to receive task or issue assignments and route that work to a set of people. A Group is mainly an administrative structure for organizing users, permissions, preferences, and governance. A Project Team represents users associated with a specific project, but it is not the general collection used to assign a task or issue to multiple people. Therefore, the verified answer is A. Team.

48. Frage

A user wants to know if a task is pending approval.
Which task field would the user review?

- A. Critical Path
- B. Status
- C. Priority

Antwort: B

Begründung:

In Adobe Workfront, the field a user should review to determine whether a task is pending approval is Status. Adobe documentation explains that approval processes for work items, including tasks, can be triggered when an item is moved to a specific status. When a project, task, or issue is pending approval, the approval information appears on the object, and the Status represents the current status of the item that is waiting for approval. Adobe also provides reporting guidance for listing objects with a pending approval process by using the object's pending status, including task pending status. This confirms that pending approval is communicated through status-related information, not through scheduling or prioritization fields. Critical Path identifies tasks that affect the project timeline and completion date, while Priority indicates relative importance or urgency. Neither field confirms whether an approval process is pending. Therefore, the correct task field to review is A. Status.

49. Frage

The executive team at Company A has asked the Workfront System Administrator how they can get visibility into the health, importance, and strategic alignment of active projects across the organization so that they can quickly make data-driven business decisions.

Which report grants the executive team this visibility?

- A. A portfolio report showing all projects grouped by team showing project condition, the alignment score, and custom data aligning the project initiative to business goals.
- B. A project report showing active projects grouped by portfolio showing project condition, project priority, and custom data aligning the project initiative to business goals.
- C. A program report showing active projects grouped by department showing program health, project urgency, and custom data aligning the project initiative to business goals.

Antwort: C

Begründung:

For executive-level reporting, a program report grouped by department provides a holistic view of ongoing initiatives. This includes the health of programs, urgency, and alignment with business goals. This type of report is essential for leadership teams to assess overall performance and make informed decisions that align with the company's strategic objectives.

50. Frage

What do the green symbols in the report below signify?

- A. At Risk
- B. On Time
- C. Late

Antwort: B

Begründung:

In Adobe Workfront reports and list views, colored status icons are used to visually communicate the progress status or condition of work items. Adobe Workfront documentation for built-in status icons explains that task progress status icons include On Time, Late, At Risk, and Behind indicators. In this icon system, On Time is represented by a green icon, while Late is represented by a red icon, and At Risk is represented by a different color/icon indicator. Adobe's Milestone View documentation also confirms that task progress status uses color coding where On Time is green, Behind is yellow, At Risk is blue, and Late is red. Therefore, the green symbols shown in the report signify that the related tasks or milestone items are progressing on schedule and are considered On Time. They do not indicate risk or lateness. Based on Adobe Workfront's documented progress status color conventions, the correct option is A. On Time.

51. Frage

Which date type on tasks can a project manager manually modify?

- A. Estimated
- B. Planned
- C. Projected

Antwort: B

Begründung:

In Adobe Workfront, Planned Dates are the dates that project managers can manually modify. These dates represent the schedule that the project is expected to follow and can be adjusted based on project needs. Estimated and Projected Dates are automatically calculated by the system based on task progress and dependencies, and these cannot be manually modified directly by a project manager. The Projected date is influenced by changes in the actual completion rate of tasks, whereas the Planned Date is the baseline schedule.
