ASET Ethics Examination-ASET Professional Practice Exam (PPE) Sample Questions (Q91-Q96):

NEW QUESTION # 91

Every province and territory in Canada has an Act that regulates engineering. Which of the following clauses will typically be found in every province's Act?

- A. To protect the public
- B. To create equipment guidelines
- C. To create compensation levels
- D. To protect the environment

Answer: A

Explanation:

The primary mandate of any professional regulatory organization (PRO) in Canada, such as ASET (Association of Science and Engineering Technology Professionals of Alberta) or APEGA, is the protection of the public. This principle is enshrined in the provincial Acts, such as the Engineering and Geoscience Professions Act (EGPA) in Alberta. The legislation grants self-regulatory powers to these professional bodies not to protect the financial interests, compensation levels, or job security of the members, but exclusively to ensure that the public is protected from incompetent or unethical practice.

By regulating who can enter the profession, maintaining strict standards of educational and experiential practice, enforcing a Code of Ethics, and administering a disciplinary process for those who fail to meet these standards, the Act ensures that engineering technologists and professionals hold public safety and welfare paramount. Therefore, clauses explicitly stating the mandate to protect the public and ensure public welfare are foundational and universally present in all provincial and territorial acts regulating engineering and applied science technology across Canada.

NEW QUESTION # 92

Under which jurisdiction does the Environmental Protection Act fall?

- A. International law
- B. Provincial law
- C. Federal law
- D. Municipal law

Answer: B

Explanation:

In Canada, environmental regulation is a matter of shared constitutional jurisdiction, meaning both the federal and provincial governments have authority over different aspects of the environment. However, when referencing general "Environmental Protection Acts" that directly govern local industrial operations, land use, localized emissions, waste management, and resource extraction, these fall primarily under Provincial law. For example, in Alberta, the primary overarching environmental statute is the Environmental Protection and Enhancement Act (EPEA). Each province has its own equivalent Environmental Protection Act tailored to its specific regional resources and industries.

While the federal government does enforce the Canadian Environmental Protection Act (CEPA), which targets toxic substances of national concern and interprovincial/international pollution, the day-to-day regulatory compliance, site assessments, and localized environmental permitting that most ASET technologists interact with are strictly governed and enforced under provincial jurisdiction.

NEW QUESTION # 93

A colleague tells a regulated member that a supervisor made unwelcome sexual advances at an after-work party. Which of the following should be the regulated member's first course of action in this situation?

- A. Encourage the colleague to report the incident to human resources for investigation.
- B. Provide moral support to the colleague but explain that the incident is not relevant to the workplace.
- C. Make a formal complaint to upper management on behalf of the colleague.
- D. No action is required by the member.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Harassment, including sexual harassment, is a severe violation of professional ethics and occupational health and safety laws, regardless of whether it occurs strictly on company premises or at an after-work party connected to employment. The ASET Code of Ethics requires members to promote health and safety within the workplace, which includes psychological safety and freedom from harassment. When a colleague confides such an incident, doing nothing (A) or dismissing it as irrelevant (D) is unprofessional and lacks empathy. However, because the member is relying on hearsay and did not witness the event, they should generally not make a formal complaint on the victim's behalf without their consent (B), as this strips the victim of their agency and can complicate investigations. The most ethical, professional, and supportive first step is to empower the victim by strongly encouraging the colleague to report the incident directly to Human Resources or the appropriate internal authority so that a formal, legally sound investigation can be initiated.

NEW QUESTION # 94

If a complaint is settled with the assistance of a mediator, the Investigative Committee may proceed with a preliminary investigation under which legislation?

- A. Section 38 of the Workers' Compensation Act
- B. Section 47 of the Engineering and Geoscience Professions Act
- C. Section 5 of the ASET Code of Ethics
- D. Section 22 of the Occupational Health and Safety Act

Answer: B

Explanation:

The legal framework governing the disciplinary procedures for professional technologists and engineers in Alberta is strictly dictated by provincial statute, specifically the Engineering and Geoscience Professions Act (EGPA). All processes relating to complaints, mediation, preliminary investigations, and disciplinary hearings derive their legal authority entirely from this Act. When a complaint is lodged against an ASET member, the Act provides mechanisms for alternative dispute resolution, such as mediation, to resolve less severe conflicts between members or clients amicably.

However, even if a matter is settled privately through mediation, the regulatory body retains its paramount duty to protect the public. Under Section 47 of the EGPA, the Investigative Committee reserves the statutory right to proceed with a preliminary investigation anyway, to ensure that no systemic incompetence, severe ethical breaches, or ongoing threats to public safety are swept under the rug by a private settlement. The Code of Ethics and OHS Acts do not contain these specific procedural mechanisms for ASET discipline.

NEW QUESTION # 95

Under most provincial human rights statutes, which of the following is not a prohibited ground of discrimination?

- A. Disability
- B. Level of education
- C. Religion
- D. Age

Answer: B

Explanation:

Human rights legislation in Canada (such as the Alberta Human Rights Act) is designed to ensure that all individuals have equal opportunities in areas like employment, housing, and services, free from prejudice. These statutes strictly prohibit discrimination based on inherent personal characteristics or protected classes, which universally include race, religious beliefs, color, gender, physical or mental disability, ancestry, age, marital status, and sexual orientation. However, "Level of education" is not a protected ground. In the context of employment and professional practice, an employer or regulatory body is legally permitted-and in fact required-to discriminate based on a candidate's level of education, skills, and experience if those factors are bona fide occupational requirements. For instance, ASET requires specific technical diplomas for registration, and an engineering firm will legally bypass candidates without the requisite educational background to ensure public safety and technical competence. Merit-based differentiation is a core component of professional hiring and regulation.
