NEW QUESTION # 18

Which is an activity of the 'incident management' practice?

- A. Assessing and prioritizing improvement opportunities
- B. Performing service reviews with customers
- C. Automating service requests to the greatest degree possible
- D. Providing good-quality updates when expected

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 19

Which is a key requirement for successful service level agreements (SLAs)?

- A. They should be carried forward, unchanged, from one year to the next to enable consistent service
- B. They should be based on system-based metrics which are useful to the service provider
- C. They should avoid ambiguous targets such as those relating to user experience
- D. They should be written using language and terms which all parties will understand

Answer: D

Explanation:

An SLA is defined as a documented agreement between a service provider and a customer that identifies both services required and the expected level of service.

SLAs are used to measure the performance of services from the customer's point of view, and it is important that they are agreed in the wider business context.

Some of the key requirements for successful SLAs include:

They must be related to a defined 'service' in the service catalogue. Individual metrics without a specified service context are unhelpful.

They should relate to defined outcomes and not simply operational metrics. This can be achieved with balanced bundles of metrics, such as customer satisfaction and key business outcomes.

They should reflect an 'agreement': an engagement and discussion between the service provider and the service consumer. It is important to involve all stakeholders, including partners, sponsors, users, and customers.

They must be simply written and easy to understand and use for all parties.

Which statement regarding a partnership relationship is TRUE?

- B. It provides commercial off-the-shelf services for a wide range of consumers
- C. It involves bespoke services with a focus on innovation and growth
- D. It focuses on operational and tactical level not on strategic level

The guiding principle "Think and work holistically" emphasizes understanding how all parts of an organization function together as an integrated system, recognizing that services and value are created through the interaction of interconnected components rather than isolated activities.
