Huawei HCSA-Presales-Storage V4.0 Sample Questions (Q282-Q287):

NEW QUESTION # 282

The OceanStor 2200 V3 is an entry-level storage product of Huawei. It with 32 GB cache supports both SAN and NAS.

- A. TRUE
- B. FALSE

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 283

Which of the following statements are correct about quotas of object storage? (Select all that apply)

- A. Tenant quota: After the capacity for written data of a tenant is used up, no more data can be written by the tenant.
- B. An alarm or event is triggered when the number of resources reaches the limit.
- C. A quota is a method of controlling resource access.
- D. Bucket quota: After the capacity for written data of a bucket is used up, no more data can be written to the bucket.

Answer: A,B,C,D

Explanation:

In Huawei's object storage management (OceanStor Pacific), quotas are a critical administrative tool for resource governance. Option C is correct as quotas serve as a fundamental method for controlling how much of the physical resource pool a specific entity (tenant or user) can access and consume.

Option A and D are correct because Huawei supports both Tenant-level and Bucket-level quotas. Once a Hard Quota limit is reached for a tenant or a specific bucket, the storage system will reject further write requests (PUT operations) to prevent exceeding the allocated budget. Option B is correct because the storage management system (DeviceManager or eSight) integrates with the quota system to trigger alarms when usage reaches predefined thresholds (such as 80% or 90%) or when the resource limit is reached, allowing administrators to take proactive measures like expanding the quota or cleaning up data.

NEW QUESTION # 284

Which is the function of BBU?

- A. System power supply
- B. Power failure protection
- C. Heat dissipation

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 285

Which of the following domain controller systems is supported by the SMB protocol?

- A. Active Directory
- B. LDAP
- C. NIS

Answer: A

Explanation:

The SMB (Server Message Block) protocol, which is primarily used for Windows-based file sharing, relies on a centralized authentication and authorization mechanism to manage permissions in an enterprise environment. In Huawei OceanStor NAS documentation, Active Directory (AD) is the primary domain controller system supported for the SMB protocol.

When a Huawei storage system joins an Active Directory domain, it can authenticate users and groups defined in the AD, allowing for seamless integration with Windows environments. While LDAP (Option A) and NIS (Option B) are supported by Huawei NAS for the NFS protocol (typically used in Linux/Unix environments), the SMB protocol is inherently designed to work with the Kerberos and NTLM authentication provided by Microsoft's Active Directory. This ensures that NTFS-style ACLs (Access Control Lists) can be properly mapped and enforced across the network.

NEW QUESTION # 286

Which of the following statements about object storage are correct? (Select all that apply)

- A. Global namespace enables object storage to be deployed and accessed across regions and AZs.
- B. Object storage supports replication between regions.
- C. For cross-site replication of object storage, the distance between sites can be up to thousands of kilometers.
- D. Object storage can be deployed across regions.

Answer: A,B,C,D

Explanation:

Huawei's object storage solution (OceanStor Pacific/OBS) is designed for massive scalability and high availability across geographic boundaries. Option C is correct because the Global Namespace feature abstracts the physical location of data, allowing users to access objects via a single URL/endpoint regardless of which Data Center or Availability Zone (AZ) the data physically resides in. This simplifies application development and data management at scale.

Options A and B are correct as the architecture supports multi-regional deployment. Data can be replicated between regions to ensure disaster recovery and data sovereignty. Unlike traditional SAN/NAS replication which is often limited by latency-sensitive synchronous protocols, object storage utilizes asynchronous transfer mechanisms optimized for the HTTP/S3 protocol. This leads to Option D being correct; because object storage replication is typically asynchronous and handles high latency well, sites can be separated by thousands of kilometers, making it an ideal solution for global data distribution and remote site backup.
