Snowflake SnowPro® Core Certification (COF-C03) Sample Questions (Q495-Q500):

NEW QUESTION # 495

What can a user with a reader account do in Snowflake?

- A. Update existing data
- B. Load new data
- C. Create a new share
- D. Query shared data

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Snowflake, a user within a reader account primarily has read-only access to the shared data. Reader accounts are created to enable third parties or separate business units to access and query data shared with them without allowing them to modify the underlying data. This means a user with a reader account can perform operations like querying shared data to analyze or report on it but cannot load new data, update existing data, or create new shares. This setup is crucial for maintaining data governance and security while enabling data sharing and collaboration. References: Snowflake Documentation on Reader Accounts

NEW QUESTION # 496

Which system-defined, read-only view displays information on column lineage that specifies how data flows from source to target in a SQL write operation?

- A. COPY_HISTORY
- B. QUERY_HISTORY
- C. LOAD_HISTORY
- D. ACCESS_HISTORY

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Snowflake, the system-defined, read-only view that displays information on column lineage, which specifies how data flows from source to target in a SQL write operation, is ACCESS_HISTORY. This view is instrumental in auditing and analyzing data access patterns, as it provides detailed insights into how and from where the data is being accessed and manipulated within Snowflake.

NEW QUESTION # 497

Which MINIMUM set of privileges is required to temporarily bypass an active network policy by configuring the user object property MINS_TO_BYPASS_NETWORK_POLICY?

- A. Only while in the securityadmin role
- B. Only the role with the ownership privilege on the network policy
- C. Only Snowflake Support can set the value for this object property
- D. Only while in the ACCOUNTADMIN role

Answer: D

Explanation:

To temporarily bypass an active network policy by configuring the user object property

MINS_TO_BYPASS_NETWORK_POLICY, the minimum set of privileges required is having the ACCOUNTADMIN role. This role has the necessary privileges to make such changes, including modifying user properties that affect network policies.
